In the Shadow Of Death

While death beckons, 4-year-old Robert Lubofsky, leukemia victim, tells his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lubofsky, and his sister, Rosemary, 2, he wants to go down to the back yard and plant a garden. Physicians today held little hope for the East Boston boy's recovery. He is scheduled for further observation at Children's Hospital. Robert was in good health until he fell from his cart two weeks ago and was badly bruised.

Rail, Phone Tieups Near

As the hour approached for two major national walkouts, New England today was threatened with the most serious tieup and confusion to affect this area since the strike-wave began to roll many months ago. Long-distance telephone communication, food, coal and oil were necessities which hung in the balance as long lines operators and locomotive engineers and trainmen were given their strike calls.

Federation of Long Lines Telephone Workers walk out tomorrow at 6 a. m., unless some truce is reached during last-ditch conferences scheduled today between labor and management.

More than 4500 engineers and trainment in the Greater Boston area have been given orders to walk out at 6 a. m. on Monday, with milk and troop trains the only thing rolling—and these only by special request.

Albert Brogle, head of the long line telephone workers local here, announced 500 employes would leave their work in this area tomorrow morning and that picketing would begin at once at the big Milk st. exchange, through which the majority of long distance calls are handled.

Pickets also will be on the job at Worcester, Pittsfield, Springfield, Providence, Hartford and New Haven.

Operators handling local calls are unaffected by the walkout. Emergency long distance calls also will be put through, the number depending on facilities available.

A telephone company spokesman said long distance calls would be made by New England Co. operators through the Newton and other exchanges, but appealed to customers not to ask for them except in dire emergency. He defined an emergency call as one of "life or death," or one affecting public health or welfare.

A railroad strike would not seriously affect Boston and New England supplies for at least 10 days, it was pointed out. Although much of this area's food and coal comes by rail, officials said that the normal supply on hand would handle immediate needs.

William F. Quinlan, president of the Boston Market Terminal, admitted there were usual surpluses of meat, fruits and vegetables on hand, and that these would carry along for a brief period. The pinch would be felt, however, if the strike should be prolonged.

March 11 Strike Announced by 2 Rail Unions

CLEVELAND, March 6 (AP)—Heads of two big railroad brotherhoods, the trainmen and engineers, today set 6 a. m. (EST), March 11, as the deadline for a progressive strike which would tie up the nation's rail system.

The expected announcement was made at a press conference called jointly by Pres. A. F. Whitney of the Trainmen's Brotherhood, with 215,000 members, and Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 78,000 members.

The actual walkout could be delayed 30 to 60 days by the President's appointment of a fact-finding committee as provided by the railway labor act.

Such a committee would have 30 days to study the strike call and report recommendations for a settlement. The panel's recommendations are not binding on either party to the dispute.

Johnston said in Washington last month, when he and Whitney called on President Truman, that the brotherhoods probably would exhaust machinery set up by the railway labor act and on another occasion declared that "whatever provisions the law calls for we will abide by."

2 Stabbed in Iran Third Day Rioting

TEHRAN, Iran, March 6 (AP)—Two men were stabbed today in the third successive day of rioting before the Parliament building and, for the third day, the legislature was prevented from voting to extend its life beyond March 11.

How to get through a picket line was demonstrated yesterday by Lawrence Squires, 29-year-old war veteran of Grand Rapids, Mich., but local police didn't like Squires' methods and held him in $500 bond, charging him with felonious assault. Police asserted he fought his way through the pickets at the Michigan Wheel Co. plant, using the butt of his shotgun.

Truman Asks Religion To Rescue Sick World

By ROBERT G. NIXON

COLUMBUS, O., March 6 (INS)—President Truman warned today only a great revival of spiritual strength and religion can save a "sick world" from destruction by the atomic bomb. Speaking to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America here, Mr. Truman said:

"If the world is long to survive, the gigantic power which man has acquired through atomic energy must be matched by spiritual strength of greater magnitude.

"All mankind now stands in the doorway of destruction—or upon the threshold of the greatest age in history. Only a high moral code can master this new power of the universe, and develop it for the common good."

He called upon the forces of "decency and righteousness" to make full use of their war-won freedom to save a world beset by "threats of new conflicts, new terror and destruction."

Saying forces of "selfishness and greed and intolerance" are again at work, he declared they create situations demanding "moral and spiritual awakening in the life of the individual and in the councils of the world."

"There is no problem on this earth tough enough to withstand the flame of a genuine renewal of religious faith," the President said. "And some of the problems of today will yield to nothing less than that kind of a revival.

"If the world is long to survive, the gigantic power which man has acquired through atomic energy, must be matched by spiritual strength of greater magnitude. All mankind now stands in the doorway to destruction—or upon the threshold of the greatest age in history. Only a high moral code can master this new power of the universe, and develop it for the common good."

The President made an appeal for:

1—Passage of housing legislation to make a better home life for the nation's children.

2—A share-the-homes program to provide temporary housing for a million war veterans and their families.

3—Fair employment practices act.

4—Extension of price control act to defeat those "greedy for gold."

5—National self-sacrifice at the dinner table in order starving millions in Europe, Asia and Africa can be fed.

He declared the United States expects to "support and defend" the United Nations charter, and said "we are confident all the other United Nations expect to do the same."

The President said millions throughout the world still look to the United States to help them recover from the devastation and want of war.

Truman Flies Back For Vinson Conference

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—President Truman arrived at national airport on the presidential plane, "Sacred Cow," at 2:35 p. m. and went immediately to the White House to confer with Treasury Secretary Vinson.

Mr. Truman told reporters Inson had asked for a mid-afternoon appointment. He said he did not know the reason.

New Constitution Bans Any Jap War

TOKYO, March 6 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today announced a new and radically altered Japanese constitution in which war and its threat "are forever renounced as a means of settling disputes with other nations."

The document vests sovereignty in the people and says the Emperor is "a symbol of state," deriving "his position from the sovereign will of the people." He "never shall have powers related to the government."

The new constitution also limits the Emperor's state functions to such specified acts as proclaiming elections and convoking the Diet.

It specifically states that maintenance of land, sea and air forces "as well as other war potential will never be authorized. The right of belligerency of the state will not be recognized."

Hirohito, who will be reduced from "a sacred and inviolable" emperor to a symbol of state with very limited formal functions, issued a special rescript stating:

"It is my desire that the constitution of our empire be revised drastically upon the basis of the general will of the people and the principle of respect for the fundamental human rights.

"I command hereby the competent authorities of my government to put forth in conformity with my wish their best efforts toward accomplishment of this end."

(MacArthur's approval of the constitution, maintaining the Mikado as a symbol of state, presumably ends any possibility of his being arrested as a war crimes suspect.)

Fishing Strike Parley Fails

A week of conferences to end the 10-week fishermen's strike broke down completely today and two fleet owners were reported seeking transfer of their vessels to a Maine port.

Report that the attempted settlement had failed was made by Thomas D. Rice, executive secretary of the Federated Fishing Boats of New England and New York, Inc., representatives of 33 trawlers now tied up here.

Prison Chef Faces Quiz By Lawes

Lewis E. Lawes, former warden at Sing Sing and now investigating prison and parole conditions here, announced today he would question the former State Prison chef to determine why he quit.

The resignation of the chef, James E. Hanegan of Robey st., Roxbury, who was ill last week at the time of the prison revolt which prompted Gov. Tobin to summon Lawes to Massachusetts for the investigation, was announced yesterday.

At his home today, Hanegan said he had resigned after working for the State for 10 years, five at Bridgewater before going to the Charlestown job. He said he had been paid $38 weekly and decided to quit last week but declined to discuss the matter further.

Lawes said he had been given complete co-operation by Warden Lanagan and other prison officials although he added they seemed reluctant to provide information, apparently preferring he find things out for himself.

At 2.30 p. m. he began conferring with Chairman Matthew W. Bullock and other members of the parole board and said he planned to look over the case records of the board in a general way.

"I have no specific cases in mind," he said before the conference. "I'll just take a cross section of about 100 of them and see what they bring out. Although there are other complaints, parole seems to be the chief bone of contention."

Lawes said he would spend all of tomorrow at State Prison checking a number of matters.

Friday and Saturday, he added, he would visit Norfolk prison colony, Concord Reformatory and the women's reformatory at Sherborn.

Revealing that Corrections Comr. J. Paul Doyle had some 800 complaints from prisoners at Norfolk, Lawes said:

"The fact that he has that many complaints prompts me to visit there. If there are that many complaints, the prisoners probably have some gripes they can unload on me."

At the executive council meeting today, the demand of Councilor John J. Sawtelle for a complete investigation of the parole board was tabled pending the report from Lawes on his investigation, which is expected to be completed next week.

Lawes spent most of the morning correlating evidence he had gathered in the first day of his investigation and lining up his plans for the rest of the week.

After a visit to the prison, during which he spoke alone with 12 convicts and interviewed Warden iLanagan, Lawes assailed the Charlestown institution as "one of the three worst prisons in the country."

He asserted the 141-year-old prison was filthy and should be replaced, adding that because of conditions there one-third of every dollar spent for food was being wasted.

"Structurally, it is the worst," he said. "It would be impossible to put it into good shape. It's ridden with bedbugs and food handling is a problem."

Lawes said the food was adequate and good when it arrived at the prison but was not when it reached the prisoners.

"I haven't found the reason for this yet," he declared, "but there is no question but that waste plays a part. I would say 33 to 35 per cent of every food dollar is wasted there."

MRS. MARTHA SPITALERI
Going South for Trial

GI Bride Going to Face Theft Trial

Mrs. Martha Aiken Spitaleri, attractive 21-year-old southern bride, who was arrested at a hotel here last week on the eve of her honeymoon and charged with the theft of $4500 from her hometown Dublin, Ga., bank, is going home to face the music.

Louis Spitaleri

Going with her is her husband, Louis P. Spitaleri of Pawtucket, former Army sergeant, who, discharged last week from Ft. Devens, came here to find his bride missing and an explanatory note from the FBI at the hotel.

Mrs Spitaleri waived extradition at a hearing before U. S. Comr. William C. Rogers today and promised to return to the federal jurisdiction in Georgia by March 17.

She was released in $2500 bail posted by her husband's father. Restitution has been made to the bank, according to the husband. The theft charge is still pending in Georgia, however.

Yen for Fried Clams Traps Hub Taxi Holdup Suspect

A hankering for fried clams today proved the undoing of George R. Carmody, 22-year-old ex-sailor, of Chestnut st., Charlestown, pulled from his bed as a suspect in a series of swift and daring taxicab holdups.

Two of three victims of holdups in Chelsea last night identified Carmody in a headquarters lineup, as did another cab driver who was robbed last December. More victims will view the suspect before he goes to court.

A 16-year-old Chelsea lad, Walter Dwyer of Beacon st., called police to tell them he had seen a man buying fried clams, and that "a big gun was sticking out of his pocket."

This message was relayed to Charlestown police as Stanley Sujko of Marion st., East Boston, a cabbie, reported he had driven a youth from Chelsea to the Navy Yard gate, and that his fare talked about Chelsea holdups. He said the youth also was carrying a gun.

Sgt. John Flood led a dozen police officers in a search of Charlestown until Patrolman Charles A. Sullivan suddenly spied a discarded clam box on the steps of a Chestnut st. house. Inside they found Carmody as well as a Luger-type pistol.

Carmody's bride, a pretty brunette, followed him to the Charlestown station, making several trips to bring him breakfast and cigarets before his lineup appearance.

Among those who police said identified Carmody was John White, 35, of Talbot ave., Dorchester, robbed of $3.50 at the point of both a gun and knife after driving a fare several blocks in Chelsea. Another was Harold Wolansky, 30, of St. Botolph st., Back Bay, robbed of $9.05 after a similar trip.

A third victim last night was Cornelius O'Reagan, 42, of Blossom st., Chelsea, who turned over $3.50 when his fare ordered him to stop in Shurtleff st., Chelsea.

Carmody also was identified by Morris Fiore of Intervale st., Roxbury, who said he was robbed of $25 on Dec. 4 or 5 when he drove a fare from Boston to a spot on Bunker Hill, Charlestown. He said the holdup man promised to leave the cab in City sq., but broke his promise.

"I didn't take your cab," Carmody protested during Fiore's identification. "I can't drive a cab, and besides I don't have a license. So how could it have been me?"

Dying Boy, 4, Full of Plans For Garden

By ALICE BISSELL

The golden morning sun came through the window today upon a little boy in his sickbed, and the sun spoke to him about spring and the joy of life.

Perhaps the nearness of death made 4-year-old Robert Lubofsky talk about gardening as though he were an old-timer and had seen a hundred springs.

His dark, hollow eyes, yellowed skin, swollen glands and great weariness all told that the fatal blood disease, leukemia, was overcoming him.

Robert has been in apparent good health all his little life, until two weeks ago he tipped over in a cart and was badly bruised.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lubofsky of Saratoga st., East Boston, took him for treatment to East Boston Relief Station and City Hospital.

When he returned home, a high fever persisted, he had no appetite and failed generally. Doctors advised a visit to a blood specialist, Dr. William Dameshek of Beacon st.

Dr. Dameshek said the boy had leukemia and, although he would not have long to live, advised them to take him to Children's Hospital.

Today Robert heard his father crying. It seemed to the little family Robert was trying to make things easier for them as he told about spring.

"He seems so old today," said the grieved father, "as though he knew everything."

And Robert took the hand of his 2-year-old sister, Rosemary, and said:

"The sun is nice. I will go down in the back yard and build a garden with granny. I will dig in it and grow beans and pink flowers for Mom.

"I'm not going to die. I don't feel good. Please take care of my bike. I want to go to school next year. I want a new shovel to dig with and grow things to eat. I want to grow peaches and apples and some pears. And play in the green grass."

German Masses Evince No Feeling of War Guilt

By AUSTEN LAKE
Boston Evening American Staff Writer

NUERNBERG, March 6—If this fair city offers a cross section of German opinion, then the natives do not care to discuss what may happen to their late masters now on trial by the Allied tribunal here. Today, I made the rounds with a German and English speaking GI named Homer Goshalt of Milwaukee, interviewing townsmen, including five small shopkeepers, three housewives, two laborers, a school teacher and three farmers.

With one exception the answers were all monotonously the same. The fate of the defendants, all said with a shrug, is no concern of theirs no matter what happens; even if they hang. Those on trial, they said plunged Germany into disaster. This is the typical reaction of the people toward failure.

The school teacher was the only one who made sage comment. He was Ernest Roedacher and he spoke good English. He asserted that the same people who cheered the first success of German arms, who glorified Goering and Nazi leaders when Germany seemed triumphant, and who accepted the benefit of enforced German labor, now are the ones who say: "Hang them. We don't care."

Austen Lake

Their one standard of measurement is success, and failure is the unforgivable sin, he said, adding, "now they wait for somebody to lead them to success."

This is a fair summation of German character in defeat. I asked these people this question: "Do you think Germany will ever make war again?"

Most of them lifted their eyebrows, as if uncomprehending. Some said sullenly that Germany did not make war this time, that it was thrust upon her. I asked: "Do Germans feel war guilt?"

For the most part, they profess not to understand. The German translation of the term war guilt genuinely puzzled some.

A German writer said, cynically, "The sense of guilt is defeat. Only that churns in the German soul for generations." That is why it does not matter to them what happens to the 21 Nazi leaders now. Their failure marks false leadership. They feel that some time a great military Messiah will come and that he will conquer. Therefore, his principal philosophy will be right.

This gospel of bitterness is apparent in a few intelligent Ger-

Ickes Warned F.D. Of Pauley Scandal

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes testified today he told President Roosevelt in 1944 that "sooner or later you are going to have a scandal on your hands" if an oil man remained as Democratic National Committee treasurer.

The statement by the former Secretary of the Interior came as he and Sen. Tydings (D.) of Maryland clashed over procedure in the Senate Naval Committee's hearing on the nomination of Edwin W. Pauley for undersecretary of the Navy. Pauley, a California oil man, formerly was Democratic national treasurer.

Ickes told the committee, under questioning by Tydings, that he did not remember making a statement in an interview with Sam Shelton, printed in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch July 5, 1945, that "Pauley was within his rights" and "did not resort to improper methods" in opposing court settlement of federal claims to tidelands oil areas.

If he said that, Ickes testified, it was a mistake because "improper methods had been used by Mr. Pauley and used constantly by him."

Tydings referred to Ickes' previous testimony that Pauley in 1944 made "the rawest proposition ever made to me." This, Ickes said then, was a suggestion that $300,000 in Democratic campaign funds could be obtained from oil men if the government did not press the tidelands oil issue.

"Why didn't you tell President Roosevelt and the American people that they had a Democratic national treasurer who was going around soliciting campaign funds from oil men who might benefit?" Tydings demanded.

"I said to President Roosevelt on one occasion," Ickes replied: "'No oil man should be treasurer of the Democratic national committee and sooner or later you are going to have a scandal on your hands.'"

Why hadn't Ickes told President Truman about Pauley, Tydings wanted to know.

"I did lead up to it two or three times," Ickes replied. "He asked me no questions. I supposed he didn't want to know."

5 French Ships Fire on Chinese

CHUNGKING, Thursday, March 7 (AP)—A Central News dispatch said today five French warships bombarded Chinese troops at Haiphong, Indochina, yesterday, and both sides suffered casualties in a hot but brief exchange.

The dispatch said the French attempted to land at the northern port, which Chinese forces had been occupying and which the French are supposed to take over under an agreement announced Feb. 28.

The fighting continued until noon, when the warships withdrew leaving huge fires roaring from a blasted ammunition dump.

These Days
Hooverized Relief

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE ESSENTIAL difference in the concept of relief between Herbert Hoover and those who have led the feeding of the world to the verge of calamity is that Hoover, being American by philosophy and a Quaker by religion, cannot rely upon coercive and involuntary actions.

He would appeal to the decency, the charity, the pity and pride of the American people and he knows that favorable results are inevitable.

As long as OPA coerces and confuses the American people, everyone of us becomes actively or passively part of the black market.

It is natural for a normal, healthy American to resist a bossy politician and office-holder.

When we see estimates that 150,000,000 bushels of wheat went down the gullets of animals because of OPA price differentials, when simple arithmetic shows that there is three-fifths of the shortage—I shall eat a steak or a loaf of bread out of order.

It is one American way of indicating disrespect for and objection to bad administration.

But when the finer sensibilities of an American are appealed to, without force, without government edicts and huge staffs, to give up something that is not really a sacrifice, he will do it.

A people who throw hundreds of millions into charity drives, without examination, purely on the say-so of highly publicized appeals, will certainly agree to have their bread sliced thinner if anyone asks them nicely.

If Chester Bowles does not spoil everything, the President's committee headed by Herbert Hoover and Chester Davis will so move the American people that one who eats more than he really needs will gag on the surplus.

ACTUALLY, the shortage is in two commodities, wheat and fats. It is a serious shortage and it is universal.

Way back last June, Mr. Hoover warned of the prospective shortage. He has called attention to the reduction of acreage devoted to wheat throughout the world, due to the course of the war.

When the harvests were in, there was no question at all as to what the winter would bring. It could only be hunger for the wheat-eating peoples of the world.

Then the rice crops failed, and only wheat could serve as a substitute, and wheat was already short.

Mr. Hoover has sought to arouse the spirit of the American people, since 1939, to the plight of the starving, particularly to the tragedy of millions of women and children, so many of whom must be added to the 60,000,000 casualties of this war.

WHERE WERE our experts, our chart-makers, our economists? They were, as they are, scattered over all sorts of departments, quarrelling over ideologies which they do not believe and differentials which make no difference.

What are their charts worth to those who die of hunger?

While the world was hungering for bread, Chester Bowles was building his "hold-the-line" empire of equations and quotients and facts and fancies and getting publicity for himself with all the skill of an advertising man performing for a vainglorious client.

Way back in June, Mr. Hoover recommended that all food questions be placed in a single agency of government from seed to bread.

He recommended as the proper agency the Department of Agriculture, which alone is organized to deal with the planting, the rasing, the fabricating and distribution of food.

INSTEAD OF concentrating the food supply into a single administration, it was decentralized and dissected so that nearly every agency of government had a hand in it, including the befogged OPA and the beclouded State Department.

The result is that the farmers held back, the cattlemen held back, black markets absorbed essential food products, and hunger stalks the world.

And as the OPA knew nothing better to do, it wanted to restore rationing for all foods when all that is required is some measure of self-abnegation and self-control on the part of the American people in the consumption of wheat and fats.

What is needed immediately is for Congress to remove all food from OPA control and to make the Secretary of Agriculture food administrator with full powers.

Congress ought to insist that the political office-holders stop playing private politics with the vitamins of this nation.

Girl Crushed to Death In Hub Elevator Shaft

Miss Ina Hipwell, 18, of White st., East Boston, an employe of Joseph Breck & Sons Corp., was crushed to death at the firm's Lewis Wharf warehouse today, the victim of an unwitnessed accident, her body wedged between a freight elevator and the wall of the shaft so tightly it took a fire department squad half an hour to release it.

While firemen were jacking up the elevator, the Rev. Edward J. Whalen, S. J., of St. Mary's Church, North End, was summoned to give the last rites.

The rescue crew worked strenuously in hope that a spark of life might be left in the young girl, but when her body was finally released and Dr. Guy Sciacca had made the pronouncement of death at 9:35, there were indications she had been almost instantly killed.

The elevator, according to Supt. Leo McNamara of the warehouse, was being operated by Miss Hipwell when the accident occurred.

Ruth Ogilvie, an employe, said she had been talking to Miss Hipwell on the fifth floor and the girl had told her, "I am going up to the sixth."

A few seconds later, said Miss Ogilive, she heard "a crash" overhead.

Rescuers found the elevator between the fifth and sixth floors. Miss Hipwell's body was wedged perpendicularly between the sixth floor level and the elevator, the head and shoulders above the floor, her legs visible from the shaft entrance on the fifth floor.

Efforts to contact the East Boston girl's parents were not immediately successful. Police said they could not find anyone at home.

The body was removed to the Northern Mortuary.

1000 Cut Off City Payroll Curley Reveals in Loan Plea

Taking a rap at the Kerrigan and Tobin mayoral regimes, Mayor Curley told members of the House and Senate today he had lopped 1000 persons from the municipal payroll since he took office two months ago. Curley addressed a majority of the Legislature at a luncheon in the City Club, where he urged passage of his bill empowering the city to borrow $10,000,000 in order to forestall a 1946 tax rate of $46, which would be an increase of $3.50 per $1000 of assessed valuation.

Referring to Tobin and Kerrigan only as "my two predecessors," the mayor said the 1946 budget calls for an increase of $2,700,000 in salary items as a result of pay boosts granted during their tenures.

An ordinance adopted by the council last year with respect to vacations and sick leave has added the need for $200,000 more with which to pay temporary help, he said.

"No mayor ever was confronted with problems like those facing me when I took office," Curley said. He added that his two predecessors had not been entirely to blame. "I think the war may have had something to do with it," he ventured.

He stated the budget estimates from all departments had been $11,900,000 over the budget adopted in 1945 but he lopped nearly $7,000,000 from the requests.

Beauty Now Wrinkle Deep

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—Well, girls, you can chuck that skin cream and relax—wrinkles are attractive.

That's the opinion of Roger Vergnes, New York hair stylist, featured at the 22nd Midwest Beauty Trade Show.

Vergnes, a naturalized Frenchman who styles hair-dos for the Duchess of Windsor, Helen Hayes and Barbara Hutton, said in an interview today the natural wrinkles which begin to show after that 30th birthday, in reality give character to the face.

"Many nature women fluff up their hair kittenishly to draw attention away from wrinkles," he said. "They look like cocker spaniels. The surest way to point up a blemish is to try to hide it. To me, a wrinkle merely emphasizes a woman's personality."

MRS. MADELINE BOOKMAN
Wins Uncontested Divorce
(INP by Paul Queenan)

Vet's Love Cools; Decree for Wife

After her soldier husband wrote her ardent love letters from overseas he returned to civilian life and informed her he no longer loved her, Mrs. Madeline Bookman of Campbell ave., Revere, testified today to gain an uncontested divorce in Suffolk Probate Court.

In fact, she said, the ardent nature of his letters cooled considerably and she produced one which read:

"Madeline, I'm not going to pull any punches or mince words. Get to —— off my ear and out of my life."

Her husband, former S-Sgt. Samuel Bookman, appeared to contest her plea for alimony, saying he was not employed, and Judge Frederick J. Dillon denied her request.

Why State Needs Spring Freeze

If Massachusetts does not have a late freeze this spring, millions of insects—tent caterpillars, brown-tail moths and the like—will set upon foliage from one end of the State to the other and render it as ragged as a hobo's hat, the legislative committee on conservation was warned today.

A dire picture was drawn by Comr. of Conservation A. K. Sloper in connection with proposed measures for control of moths and other bugs.

Massachusetts has approximately 450,000 badly infested acres, he said.

The State's foliage was saved from bug mastication last spring because the late freeze killed moths and eggs alike, he explained.

FUMES KILL MAN, 86

John M. Graf, 86, was found dead today in his Myrtle st., Malden, home, apparently after boiling coffee extinguished the flame on his kitchen stove permitting fumes to escape. He was the father of Mrs. Josephine Howland, first woman president of the Malden Board of Aldermen.

CAMBRIDGE HOME ROBBED

Mrs. Nellie Lenkauskas of Columbia st., Cambridge, reported to police today thieves had broken into her apartment and taken $1700 worth of war bonds, a gold watch and three bank books while she was visiting in New York.

Wife Has Bogus Soldier Jailed

Henry Nault, 27, of Shawmut ave., Roxbury, who married the widow of a Navy seaman killed in a PT boat accident, was found guilty in Roxbury court today on her complaint of nonsupport and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

He appealed and was held in $500 by Judge Frankland W. L. Miles.

Mrs. Margaret Higgins Nault told the court she was left with five children when her husband was killed and she married Nault after he told her he was a veteran of Patton's Third Army.

She said she learned later he never had been in the service.

By her marriage, she said, she lost a $153 monthly allotment and her new husband went through some $3000 of her insurance money and never gave her any money.

More Price Controls Off

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—OPA today lifted price controls from electric light bulbs and all musical instruments except radios and phonographs.

It also discontinued price ceilings on snow-shoes, cowbells, bull rings, gas masks, cocktail shakers, unglazed flower pots and other items, including baseball and football uniforms, except shoes.

The exemption order on musical instruments also covers all phonograph records and albums.

Next Monday, OPA added, retail ceilings on bicycles will be dropped.

CIVILIAN NOW—Albert H. La Fleur, Navy radioman captured on Wake Island in December, 1941, starts for his Chicopee Falls home after discharge today at the Fargo Building. He said the only thing that kept men alive was Red Cross food parcels. He spent 45 months in Jap prison camps. INP by Carroll Myett

3 Jamaica Plain Runaways Safe In Scout Camp

Three 11-year-old Jamaica Plain boys, who calmly set out for a hike to New York last night without the formality of asking parental consent, were found safe at noon today in the Boy Scout camp, Scoutland, at Westwood.

The trio, sought by police throughout the night while their parents remained sleepless in anxiety, were: Edward Dustin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dustin, Eastland rd.; John Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lynch, Bourne rd., and John Hanney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hanney, Woodlawn st.

The three-boy safari had originated as an adventure for five but the other two youths thought better of it and turned back. It was from them that parents and police drew clues for the search.

Provisioned with canned goods, canteens of water and other necessaries for a long jaunt, the intrepid trio had originally intended to strike out for Providence, but there had been reports they might seek out the Boy Scout camp at Westwood. Police there, as well as Boy Scouts, had searched a 400-acre wooded tract before the young explorers turned up.

314 Irish Brides Sail From Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 6 (AP)—The U. S. transport Henry Gibbons sailed today for New York with 314 Irish brides and 140 children of American servicemen.

Dock workers lined the quay singing, 'Land of Hope and Glory" and "Come Back to Erin."

Stowaway Foiled as French Brides Sail

LE HAVRE, France, March 6 (AP)—Nearly 500 French and Belgian wives and children of American soldiers sailed for New York today. Departure of the George W. Goethals was delayed 20 minutes when the mother of one bride tried to stow away.

Authorities finally convinced Mme. Lulu Politzer of Paris she could not make the trip. She is the mother of Mrs. Josette Addelson, en route to join her husband, Jack, of Altoona, Pa.

Intramural Oratory Contests Start in 44 Boston Schools

By BERT FORD

Students in all 44 public and parochial schools in Boston stand enrolled today in the 1946 Hearst Newspapers National Oratorical Contest, and many of them are already conducting their intramural contests in preparation for the Boston finals in Faneuil Hall on April 10. At the same time 14 colleges in the Boston area had indicated their participation in the contest, with five of them actively preparing to submit their candidates. The colleges are: Tufts, Salem Teachers' College, Boston University, Boston College, Simmons College, Harvard University, Emerson College, Mass. Institute of Technology, Emmanuel College, Regis College, Radcliffe College, Wellesley College, Staley College of the Spoken Word, Portia Law School and Boston State Teachers' College.

This contest: "Andrew Jackson, Seventh President of the United States," is open to all public and parochial high school and college students in 13 major cities throughout the country, and Boston this year is headquarters for both eastern zone and national finals.

The contest honors one of the nation's great military leaders who returned from war to win his country's highest honor, the presidency. Honorary national chairman of the contest is Mrs. Beatrice Ayer Patton of Hamilton, widow of another great and victorious fighting general, the late George Smith Patton.

Eastern zone and national finals will be held in Boston Latin School, which has historic significance of its own as the oldest public school in America.

Hon. Leo P. Doherty, chairman of the local committee, has announced that his committee would meet today at the Parker House to confer on selection of judges for the Boston finals, to be held at historic Faneuil Hall, April 10. This panel of judges will include five leading Boston educators, historians, and men prominent in public life.

From the high school intramural contests, now in progress throughout the city, the two winning students will be eligible to compete in the eastern zone contests, to be held in Boston Latin School April 24. The winner of this contest will compete in the national finals, also in Boston Latin School, May 2.

High school finals in both these contests will be held during the afternoon, with finals for college students in the evening.

Judge Doherty, who this year as in past years, has shown great interest in the oratorical contest, has already conferred with Rev. William J. Daly, diocesan superintendent of Boston parochial schools, and Dr. Arthur L. Gould, superintendent of Boston public schools, to enlist the interest of all pupils in the local contest.

Indications are that it will be the greatest contest to be held since first inaugurated four years ago. Students are receiving full co-operation from the heads of both English and history departments in the respective schools.

National and local prizes total $25,000, all in Victory Bonds, the winners in both high school and college groups to receive $1000 each in Victory Bonds. A $100 bond will be awarded to all runners-up in the national finals.

Local awards are: First prize, $250; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $25, all in Victory Bonds. An additional $50 bond will be awarded to every contestant reaching the zone finals.

Called to War

Andrew Jackson's legal career was interrupted by a call for soldiers, to resist the British invasion; an appeal to which he responded with adventurous spirit. This call launched him on a military career that won him tribute from both friends and foes as being one of the greatest generals America has ever produced.

An enemy officer, after resisting Jackson for many terrible weeks at New Orleans had this to say:

"This is what it means in war to have a real general in command on the other side."

N. E. Hospital Groups To Meet Tuesday

A joint meeting of the New England Dietetic Ass'n and the New England Hospital Assembly will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Georgian Room, Hotel Statler.

Speakers will include President-elect Mabel MacLachlan of the American Dietetic Ass'n and Dr. Jack Metcoff of the Nutrition Division of the Harvard Medical School's Biochemistry Dept.

SUCCESSFUL AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS

Came the flood — Noah had his ark, but that was in the days before Filene's and its One and Only Automatic Bargain Basement with its convenience keeps you dry-as-toast handy tunnel entrances. When changeable New England weather unexpectedly goes on a rampage—our direct entrance from all subway trains are a boon when suddenly comes the rain! It's probably happened to you — togged out in your best finery and Old "Jupe Pluv" goes on a spree—there you are caught in a shower and you definitely decide that "Jupe" must be in league with the tailors—the pressing business has to thrive, too! However, leave it to a clever young lady to out foil the weather. Coming down town recently, the heavens literally opened up and the rain poured in torrents. Our female friend had on a brand new suit and undismayed she made her entrance to Filene's Basement directly from the subway train—purchased herself a new sweater at $2.00 and a skirt at $5.00—had the new suit wrapped in a box where she didn't have to worry about it. Caught on the street in the same downpour—another young lady with her dress literally dripping off her—solved her dilemma by coming to Filene's Basement and purchasing a suit for $15.00 and a blouse for $2.70 to go with it. Our handy, easy accessible, direct subway entrances are the safe solution for avoiding getting wet. However, if you are unavoidably caught in an amphibious maneuver Filene's Basement's convenient low prices make the purchase of a pair of protective rubbers, a handy umbrella—a cover all raincoat or a whole new outfit as in the case of our "drenched" friend, an inexpensive solution!

Girl Military Students Tell Headmaster's Immoral Acts

NORRISTOWN, Pa., March 6 (AP) — The headmaster of a private co-educational military school, closed by police after his arrest on morals charges, denies he had improper relations with girl pupils.

George W. Balles, Jr., 33, told a county court jury at his trial yesterday "I never put my hands on them."

Balles, who conducted the Warminster Military Academy at nearby Three Tuns with his wife, Laura, 37, is charged with rape, contributing to the delinquency of minors, open lewdness, assault and battery and corrupting public morals. Mrs. Balles is also under indictment on morals counts.

Seven teen-age children, including girls of 13, 15 and 16, testified Balles acted indecently in their presence. One girl charged Balles—who asserted under cross-examination he was an ordained Baptist clergyman — raped her "four or five" times.

Balles told the jury of 10 women and two men he was arrested when Police Chief Russell F. Pletcher found him parked in a country lane with an 11-year-old girl. He admitted signing a police statement which said he had committed an "act of lewdness" but said he never had admitted immoral relations "with that girl or any other girl." He said the statement was a lie.

Balles said his wife "never committed an immoral act." Previous testimony by teen-age prosecution witnesses, former students at the school, charged Mrs. Balles with helping the headmaster in immoral acts.

Churchill Plan Seen As Knife in UNO

WASHINGTON, March 6 (INS)—Three senators charged today that Winston Churchill's proposal for a U. S.-British military alliance "would cut the throat" of the United Nations Organization.

They said such an alliance would "destroy th uenity" of the Big Three "without which the peace cannot be saved."

Sen. Pepper (D.) of Florida, Sen. Kilgore (D.) of West Virginia and Sen. Taylor (D.) of Idaho, said in a joint statement Churchill had called for "an old-fashioned power politics military alliance." They added:

"His speech reveals what the British people determined in their recent election, that Mr. Churchill, in spite of his heroic war leadership, is so much attached to the old order that he is looking backward.

"He cannot free his thinking from the roll of the drums and the flutter of the flag of empire."

There was some congressional reaction favorable to Churchill's plea for an alliance but there was much outspoken criticism.

There was an undertone of feeling that the United States must not become embroiled in alliances that would hamper an independent course of action in foreign relations.

McCormack Demands U. S. Be Firm With Reds

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—Rep. McCormack (D.) of Massachusetts declared today Russia "is going out of its way openly to attack religion in an effort to divide the religions of the western world."

The House majority leader in a statement demanded "firmness" in United States dealings with the Soviet and added:

"Except the Soviet Union all the nations of the world have shown a stronge desire to work for peace. It is up to Soviet Russia to co-operate or to be charged with responsibility for failure."

Russia, McCormack said, "has been unwilling to co-operate for world peace.

"Appeasement of Hitler contributed to bringing about World War II. Appeasement of Russia will contribute to the defeat of international co-operation necessary for permanent peace.

"It is one thing to recognize the proper claims of Russia, but it is another to see the unfair things it is doing in violation of its promises to other nations.

"One thing seems certain—the United States cannot and shuld not, for its own interests, as well as for future peace, continue what appears to be a policy of appeasement of Soviet Russia and its imposition of Communistic control upon other countries."

All Britain Except Reds Hail Churchill's Plan

LONDON, March 6 (INS)—With the exception of Communists, Britain offered a warm welcome today to Churchill's proposal for a permanent Anglo-American military alliance.

The enthusiastic reception given the plan in the British press was indicative of the growing realization Britain cannot stand alone against Russia—that it must have American support if the Kremlin's apparent expansionist challenge is to be met.

This morning's Communist Daily Worker launched the bitterest attack against Churchill seen in a British publication since the war.

It termed the Fulton speech an "open call for an Anglo-American axis directed against the Soviet Union."

Ash Wednesday Ushers in Lent

The first peacetime Lenten season in five years began today, ushered in by services at Catholic and Protestant churches and distribution of ashes in the traditional ritual reminding "dust thou art, and unti dust shalt thou return." Ash Wednesday was observed with services conducted by Boston's two Christian leaders, Archbishop Cushing officiating at a special mass at St. Clement's Church, Back Bay, and Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill preaching at the noonday service at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Ashes were distributed in Catholic, Episcopal, Lutheran and several Presbyterian churches, while penitential services were conducted by all faiths.

Services will be conducted tonight and Friday night in all Catholic parish churches.

In all Episcopal churches, holy communion services will be held, with recitation of the penitential office and distribution of ashes.

At the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, Rev. William H. Denney will begin Lenten lectures at 8 p. m., and the penitential office will be said.

Visiting speakers will occupy the pulpits of all Lutheran churches, and their addresses will be on the theme, "Shadows of the Cross."

Turk Envoy's Body Home on Battleship

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP) —The State Department said today the body of Menmet Ertegun, Turkish ambassador, who died here in 1944, will be taken to his homeland aboard the superbattleship Missouri. Because of the war, it was impossible to take the body home in 1944.

The 45,000-ton Missouri, on which the Jap surrender documents were signed, will be accompanied by several destroyers.

Pope Starts Lent

VATICAN CITY, March 6 (AP)—Pope Pius limited his public activity on this Ash Wednesday and gave only private audiences.

He received Clement Cardinal Von Galen and Josef Cardinal Frings of Germany in farewell audiences.

Vatican offices were closed. During Lent, the Pope will hear sermons in his private chapel with members of his household.

Strikes

Ass'n, said there is enough bituminous coal here to supply Boston for several weeks, but that anthracite supplies would be completed much sooner.

Although the railroad strike hour had been set, there still was the chance that a settlement might be reached. It also appeared possible that the Railway Labor Act's mediation procedure might bring a 30 to 60-day delay.

William Donoghue, spokesman for the AFL-Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Clifford Kealey, spokesman for the AFL-Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers, said 4550 members in the New England area were prepared to strike at 6 a. m. Monday. They said New Haven railroad men would walk out, but that no large scale picketing was expected.

Boston & Albany workers were scheduled to halt work at the same hour, while Boston & Maine men were ordered out Tuesday and the Maine Central on Wednesday.

"Only intervention by President Truman can stop the strike now," declared H. A. Twichell, general chairman of engineers in this area.

At the same time, 400 workers of the American Hide & Leather Co. walked out in Lowell. Picketing began at once, although some workers were allowed through the lines in order to care for valuable hides and skins that might spoil.

The workers have been seeking a 30 per cent wage boost since the trouble first began brewing in November. Strikers are members of the International Fur and Leather Workers Union, CIO.

Boston did score one strike settlement when 700 warehousemen this morning returned to their jobs at 21 struck warehouses, ending a 22-day strike.

The men had voted to return to work and submit their demand for a $1.10-an-hour wage to arbitration. Members of the Warehouse Employers Ass'n speedily accepted the compromise and at 8 a. m. today trucks and trains moved out with food, liquor, cigarets and other merchandise which had been tied up.

About 300 lumber handlers, who joined the walkout, likewise returned to work at a Charlestown lumber terminal.

OCD Sent Hub Weak Fire Hose

Fire hose sent to Boston by the Office of Civilian Defense for protection against air raids failed to meet fire department specifications and was stored as "useless" almost three years ago, Deputy Chief Walter C. Glynn told the city council budget committee today.

Glynn, who is also the department's superintendent of maintenance, said the hose was single jacket type which was impossible to use in the Boston pressure system.

Comr. Russell S. Codman told the committee $250,000 was needed to make the city's fire stations structurally safe.

Councilor James C. Bayley, Jr., Back Bay, questioned the need for the Boston municipal bureau when its director, Rep. George B. Norton, West Roxbury, appeared before the committee to speak in favor of its $32,650 budget.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when it gets blocked it fails to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is not soda or an alkalizer—but something to "unblock" your intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits your food to move along normally. Nature's own digestive juices can then reach it. You get genuine relief that makes you feel really good again.

Get Carter's Pills at any drugstore—25¢. "Unblock" your intestinal tract for real relief from indigestion.

mans, but not in the rank and file.

Today I discovered an interesting experiment, made by the American scientist, Gustave Gilbert of New York, who gave most of the 21 Nazi prisoners a social psychology test. He attempted to find out what made them tick mentally, and is still in the process of assembling data. The tests take many hours with each subject and involve mental reflexes, memory, observation, association of ideas, and so forth.

Results show, says Gilbert, that all 10 thus far examined are above the average. The intelligence rating of 100 was passed even by stupid Julius Streicher.

Streicher, the notorious Jew-baiter, had the most trouble with arithmetic. In one example he was asked: "If you buy seven two pfennig stamps and give the clerk half a mark, how much change should you receive?"

There are 100 pfennigs in one mark, so the answer is 36. Streicher, who scored 106 in the intelligence rating, took a full minute to form an answer, and then got it wrong, Gilbert said.

Most of the subjects are egotistically eager to show their prowess intellectually, the scientist added.

Gilbert, who speaks fluent German, spent weeks in patient relationship with the subjects before attempting to test them.

Those examined thus far belong to the intelligent 2 per cent of the German population, he said, and although these Nazis are not super-intellects by any means, they must be regarded as above the mean level. Therefore, they obviously understood their acts and responsibilities perfectly.

Schacht, Hitler's economic and banking expert, confessed himself weak on simple sums, but gave the smart answer that if a financial wizard is smart at arithmetic he is apt to be a swindler. However, Schacht belied himself by passing with the highest grade, 143.

Other scores in order were: Seyss Inquart 141, Goering and Doenitz 138, Von Papen 134, Frank Fritsche and Von Shirach 130, Von Ribbentrop and Keitel 129, Speer 128, Jodl and Rosenberg 127, Von Neurath and Frick 125, Funk 124, Snacket 118.

Most discomfited by his failure to be first was Goering, who wanted to take the test over again, he said, so that he could clarify some of his first puzzlements. It was a source of chagrin to him that he finished third in tie with Doenitz.

Of course, the actual murdering was done by criminal psychopaths at camps like Dachau, Belsen and Buchenwald, but the purpose of this test of the Nazi top men was to determine the psychological causes which made such a system possible.

Gilbert reduces the psychological cause to the seemingly simple fundamental of personal selfishness. He suggests that none of the 21 leaders are patriots or interested in the aggrandizements of the German Empire except where they reflected power and glory on themselves.

Capital to Study King 40-Mi. Plan

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King disclosed today he has accepted an invitation to serve on President Truman's traffic conference committee May 8 to 10 in Washington, where he will present his 40-mile speed limit plan.

"Until we have four good tires on all our automobiles we ought to have a 40-mile speed limit," King said. "This limit is the best way to prevent accidents and save lives."

King will serve with Justice Owen J. Roberts, chairman of the conference committee on laws and ordinances under Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, general chairman.

"The response from fellow law enforcement agencies all over the country to the 40-mile limit has been immediate and enthusiastic," King added. "I've had letters from everywhere, all hoping I wouldn't grow weary in the fight."

Red Cross Drive Head Tells What Funds Will Do

Exactly what a contribution to the 1946 Red Cross Fund campaign can do was explained today by Francis W. Hatch, chairman of the drive in Greater Boston, for which a quota of $1,901,150 has been set with a deadline for March 26.

A partial list of purposes to which contributions are put was prepared by Chairman Hatch. It follows:

$5 will provide for five home visits by Red Cross public health nurses to sick and needy families.

$5 will provide a day's meals for 12 victims of fire, flood or tornado.

$5.66 will provide a set of nine games for blind veterans in hospitals.

$15 will supply athletic and other recreational equipment for disabled veterans or men serving overseas.

$17.55 will provide 50 records for entertainment of overseas or hospitalized servicemen.

$25 will equip a Red Cross highway first aid station and perhaps save the life of an injured motorist.

$50 will cover all expenses of a disaster-injured patient for 10 days in a hospital.

$100 will repair the average flood-damaged home so it will be livable again.

$285 will provide medicine for a three-month period for 100 people in war ravaged Europe.

"The full list of services would go on indefinitely," Hatch said. "The Greater Boston campaign must be successful so that the Red Cross can carry on and meet needs as they arise."

The first report on contributions will be made tomorrow at a Dutch treat luncheon at the Boston City Club. During the meeting a tribute will be paid to the late Frederick A. Carroll, Boston banker who was killed last October in France while serving as Red Cross commissioner for Great Britain and Western Europe.

Peron Lead Increasing

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (AP)—Partial returns from Cordoba gave Col. Juan Perone a slight edge today over his Democratic Union opponent, Dr. Jose Tamborini, in the race for that province's 34 electoral votes.

Political observers expressed surprise as Peron took a 20,697 to 20,293 lead in Cordoba, which had been considered a Tamborini stronghold.

Thus far the tabulation of election returns has been completed in seven of Argentina's provinces, with Peron carrying five with 50 electoral votes and Tamborini two with 20 votes. Incomplete returns from Cordoba and other provinces gave Peron an indicated total of 232 electoral votes to 38 for Tamborini. A total of 189 is needed to win.

South End Man Held in Girl Case

George Clarke, 28-year-old Negro, of Columbus ave., South Enud, was held for the grand jury in $2500 today after he pleaded not guilty in municipal court to attempted criminal assault on Jean Kruk, 24, of Fenton st., Dorchester, Feb. 16.

Miss Kruk told Judge Joseph T. Zottoli Clarke had accosted her in the hallway of a business building at Northampton and Tremont sts. at noon, while she waited to meet her two sisters employes there.

He drew a knife, backed her to a wall and threatened to stab her if she made an outcry, but her screams caused him to flee, she testified.

Clarke, who was arrested two days later by Special Officer George J. Harnden, admitted he had drawn the knife and made the threat. He acknowledged also he had been ordered to keep away from the building.

Ex-Gov. Wills of Vt. Dead in Brockton

BROCKTON, March 6—Former Gov. William H. Wills of Vermont, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, died suddenly early today at the Bryant Hotel of a heart attack.

He arrived here yesterday to conduct hearings on five applications for erection of a radio station here.

Burial will probably be in Vermont, a friend said. The Wills have one child, Mrs. Anne Pikes.

Governor of Vermont for two terms, from 1941 through 1945, Wills was 63.

Vet's Loss Blamed On Souvenir Hunters

A Roxbury Navy veteran, back from the South Pacific, told police that his suitcase, containing all his important personal papers, was stolen from South Station only an hour after he received his discharge from Fargo Building today.

Ph.M. 3c Benson Williams, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Williams of Wardman rd., Roxbury, had only taken four steps away from the suitcase. The Shore Patrol blamed young boys looking for war souvenirs.

Delinquency Bills Favored

"Juvenile delinquency is our biggest problem today. By the time a young persons gets to the court, it is often too late to change his pattern of life," Rep. Leslie Cutler (R.) of Needham told the legislative committee on public welfare today, as she favored measures calling for a special commission to study the problem.

The committee heard a group of bills relative to this study, one of which would set up a division in the Department of Education to recommend methods of prevention.

Appearing in favor of the study were Arthur C. K. Hallock, representing the Massachusetts Child Council; John J. Tobin, Cambridge, chairman of the youth guidance committee of the Order of Eagles; Charles C. O'Donnell of Lynn and Rep. William X. Wall, Lawrence.

Youth in Stolen Truck Captured

Less than an half-hour after he allegedly stole a loaded meat truck in North st., in the Boston market district, a New Haven, Ct., youth was arrested in Cambridge after wild chases through downtown Boston, Dorchester and Cambridge. He was captured when the truck ran into a snowbank and crashed.

The youth gave his name to police as Stanley P. Suczyk, 24, of Truman st., New Haven, and said he was a discharged Navy veteran and had been undergoing treatment at a veterans' hospital near Northampton.

He was booked on a charge of drunkenness, operating under the influence of liquor and to endanger, driving without a license and larceny of a truck and its contents.

Guardian For Five Brothers

"Teddy" is the pet of 8-year-old Thomas Leonard of 92½ Main st., Great Barrington, and a fine guardian for Tommy and his four little brothers.

Tommy tells all about his great love for "Teddy" in today's prize winning $5 letter in the Boston Record-American contest, "Why I Love My Dog." Here's his letter:

"Teddy is my friend and pal. He is two years old and the best watchdog you could find. He walks to school with me and he is always right there on the corner waiting exactly on the dot when I get out. I have four brothers and he follows them wherever they go. My mother never has to worry because he keeps watch over them.

"He minds very well and lies down whenever he is told to. He also can sing, and he loves to show off for my mother. When company comes she sings some popular song and Teddy joins right in. He really can carry the tune, too.

"No one can take the place of Teddy in our home and in our hearts."

All letters on the subject, "Why I Love My Dog," should be addressed to the Anti-Vivisection Editor, Boston Record-American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 6, Mass. The contest is open to all, and these newspapers will award a $5 prize each day for the best letter.

SOCIALISM IN ACTION

KARL MARX, and not anybody in the New Deal, was the real author of the OPA theory that wages can be increased without increasing prices.

The New Dealers were plainly parroting the Marxist theory when they put forth the proposition that wages could be increased in this country by 15 to 50 per cent without moving price ceilings upward.

But business men know what will happen if the OPA policy is continued very long.

They will simply be forced out of business and the Socialists and bureaucrats will demand that the government take their concerns over, on the alleged ground that free enterprise has "failed."

The whole thing—obscurely understood, no doubt, by the visionary politicians at Washington—is a shrewdly devised scheme for "Socializing" the industries and commerce of the nation.

Great Britain, under a Socialist Labor government, has moved faster and more directly toward Socialism in some segments of the economy: and the result has already been both surprising and disappointing to the Labor Party leaders.

The coal industry, on which the United Kingdom depends for much of its foreign trade, has been fully "nationalized."

For years the British Socialists asserted that the landlords and operators were "exploiting" the mines and the miners; that, with the mines nationalized, profits would be eliminated; that higher wages would then be paid; that the men would work more diligently; and that more coal would be produced to sell abroad at low prices.

Since the nationalization, wages have been doubled, but there has been NO INCREASE IN PRODUCTION, and an "export price" is not in sight.

THE MINEWORKERS' UNION, which is participating in management under the Socialist plan, is now demanding ANOTHER INCREASE OF WAGES with SHORTER WORKING HOURS—which would involve STILL LESS PRODUCTION and A STILL HIGHER PRICE FOR A TON OF COAL.

"The London Economist" has made an illuminating comment on this British example of state Socialism.

"If," it asks, "higher wages are to be tied up with higher productivity, which should come first?

"Is it right to raise the wages first and TRUST that the productivity will follow—in spite of the evidence that, in some industries, the more the worker is paid the less he works?"

Extending the problem from coal to other fields, the "Economist" unerringly traces its origin to Marxist propaganda.

"In one industry after another," the publication explains, "something suspiciously like this is being done—a big increase in labor costs with nothing but pious talk about increases in productivity.

"It is a lifetime of Socialist teaching that is coming home to roost on the heads of the Labor ministers, for a wage-earner who believes that all his demands can be met out of the surplus value accruing to the exploiters of labor is beyond the power of being convinced that there is any connection at all between his own efforts and his rightful desserts.

"So long as there is a single capitalist left in the country, the worker will go on believing what the Labor government has always told him,—that he is morally right and economically sound to work less and demand more wages."

EVIDENTLY, the "Economist" fears that the substitution of Socialism for free enterprise in Great Britain means an insoluble problem.

"Within two years, or three at the most," it predicts, "we shall have to sell double the pre-war volume of manufactures, in a world market that will by then be once more competitive.

"We shall have to sell them on price and quality alone.

"And the penalty for failure will be to plunge back into a siege economy, with rations, queues and universal scarcity."

In other words, the foreboding is that Britain's Socialist economy will prove as bleak and grim as a war economy.

And the OPA policy at Washington promises nothing much better for the United States.

Farewell! And when some future lover
Shall claim the heart which I resign
And in exulting joys discover
All the charms that once were mine.
I think I should be sweetly blessed
If in a soft imperfect sigh,
You'd say while to his bosom pressed
He loves not half so well as I. —MOORE.

THAT OLD Irish love song, "Bridget Donahue," will be sung on the air by Morton Downey. This is in response to a suggestion by this department. Now, I am looking for a fife and drum corps to play "The World Turned Upside Down." That was the tune played by the British fife and drum corps at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

REMARKABLE INFANTS: When 42 years of age, Mrs. William Tyler of San Francisco gave birth to her 21st baby. That is a blessed event record I am certain no other city can top. Speaking of infants, Mrs. Thomas P. Moran of Brookline says her daughter walked at the age of 7 months and that one of her other children walked at 7½ months and another at 8 months. All her children, says Mrs. Moran, could talk very well between the ages of 10 months and 1 year. That possibly might be something neither California nor Brooklyn could top.

WRITES A SUBSCRIBER: You claimed that just before his demise the late Casey Jones expressed a wish to live so he could ride two more roads, the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe. That was an error. The last words of Mr. Jones were to the effect that he would like to ride the Denver & Rio Grande and the Southern Pacific. He made no mention of the Santa Fe. From the immortal song which so minutely describes the great engineer's passing I quote:

"Casey said before he died:
"'There's two more roads I'd like to ride.
"Fireman said: 'What can they be?'
"'The Rio Grande and the Old S. P.'"

HORSES AND WOMEN: "So the stargazers say Cancer (June 22-July 23) women are inclined to be flirtatious," writes a Los Angeles subscriber. "This claim has made me a little nervous. I am married to a Cancer woman. She has brown eyes, too. That makes her a double threat as a flirt according to the combined opinion of the stargazers and your Horses and Women experts. Although the little woman does have a roguish eye, I seem to be the apple thereof. But a realistic view must be taken. Have you anything in your H & W files as to the best methods of taming a brown-eyed Cancer born wife? I may need the same?"

PLEASE NOTE: Some women have had very unfortunate experiences as a result of being poisoned by hair dye. This happens when a woman is allergic to a certain kind of dye. All women planning to have their hair dyed should first take a test to ascertain whether they are allergic to the type of dye to be used. Such is the advice of one of this country's leading dermatologists. Keep this in mind. If your wife talks about changing from a brunette to a strawberry blonde or from a dishwater blonde to an amber blonde, insist that she first undergo an allergy test to find out if the dye to be used is safe for her.

OFFER: Boone Brown of Chicago informs me he would like to wager $1000 that Billy Conn will knock out Joe Louis in their forthcoming bout. However, there is a catch in Boone's offer. He wants odds of 30-to-1. I haven't the price line on the Louis-Conn bout, but I doubt if any of the sporting fraternity is offering odds like that.

PASSING BY: Willie "Smokey" Saunders, Erstwhile jockey. Won the Kentucky Derby on Omaha. This horse was about the last famous American thoroughbred to race in England. Omaha did so well over there it began to look as if he might win the Ascot Cup. The British hate to see an American horse win one of their classics so the handicapper assigned a terrific and seemingly unjust weight impost for Omaha in the race at Ascot. Even so the noble animal just lost by a nose . . . Robert De Vogue. French champagne magnate. The difference in quality between French champagne and California or New York State champagne is not so great as many believe.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON, Ariz., March 6—An eye-witness to the booms in Florida, I should be able to recognize one with the naked eye and ear.

On the basis of that experience, I should say that the present congestion and enterprise in Arizona constitute a development rather than a boom.

Westbrook Pegler

Like Florida, Arizona does a big business in the sale of warm weather in winter and there are those who believe that the time will come when the people will be reduced to the job of taking in one another's washing, which is just what many conservative souls were saying of Miami in the early twenties.

At first sight, the desert country is forbidding and ominous and service men who traveled through on their way to and from the Pacific, dully eyeing the wastes of mountain and plain, the occasional weather-beaten little dobe houses and the trails leading back into the cactus, have said they wouldn't get off a train here.

Yet, in the last few years before the war and this winter, the tourist or vacation population grew rapidly, and it is as certain as anything can be that this increase will continue, accompanied by a growth in facilities for somewhat less nerve-wracking pleasures than those of the Florida Gold Coast and for the care of invalids suffering from tuberculosis, arthritis, some heart troubles and asthma.

At present, the accommodations for such patients are far short of the minimum requirements, and here, I suggest, is an opportunity for doctors, nurses and promoters who are willing to invest money in quiet retreats or sanitaria.

The hotels, too, and tourist camps for motorists, called motels, are overcrowded, and most of the dude ranches, which are, generally speaking, an elaboration of the New England farm homes where summer boarders are offered a refuge from it all, are booked up.

IT IS NOT my business to sell Arizona to anyone, but, to my taste, which is not unique or peculiar in such matters as the population figures show, the dry, warm summers and the dazzling beauty of the sunsets are an irresistible combination.

I was one of those who, seeing speculators buying and swapping options and titles to land, swamp and sea bottom in Miami 20 years ago, believed that when the craze was over most of the real estate would go back to palmetto and rattlesnakes, alligators and mosquitoes.

When last I saw Miami and the beach, they had grown into a metropolis whose principal business was the sale of climate and luxury at prices beyond belief, but with a solid foundation of air and sea commerce and some manufacturing and a background of agriculture.

A few boom communities actually did decay, but only a few, and even some of those failures were reclaimed after a few years as restless Americans shifted from old surroundings.

ARIZONA'S BASIC business is mining, and contrary to a general impression among those who think of the desert as a waste fit for no good use, the desert has been made to bloom in some areas with an agriculture of formidable importance.

Who of those in the drifts and sleet of the East today would imagine, that in the outskirts of Tucson there were trees heavy with citrus and sweet peas, daisies and violets in bloom on small tracts of utter desert, some of them subdivision of claims pioneered by veterans of the first World War?

These are the attractions, the luxuries, which draw the winter vacation trade with money to spend on their pleasure and this class of Americans seems to be of a reliable permanence, though the individuals do change, for Southern California and Florida both banked on their business and prospered as a result.

It has seemed to me from the beginning of my experience that Arizona and particularly Tucson, the University City, are more intellectual, more interested in the arts than either the old residents or the boomsters and tourists were in Florida.

I remember inquiring about Miami for days for a history of Dade County and a biography of Major Dade, who explored the Everglades, without success until, one night, a young woman who was press-agent for a big gambling house and floor show, and a stranger in town, at that, lent me one.

IN TUCSON there are a Little Theater, lectures and university classes, and the history of the State and city, which actually were frontier so short a while ago, is an interest that constantly occurs in books and reminiscent local stories.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 6—I don't know of any actress in Hollywood who has made more of a record this last year than Barbara Stanwyck. She's had one good picture after another, and she's proven she can play a murderess or a sheltered society woman with equal facility.

I must admit I am terribly interested in Barbara's career at this point, because I think now she's in a better spot than she's ever been in her life. She has signed a long-term deal with Charles Einfeld and David Loew for Enterprise Pictures, and will be starred in "The Other Love," by Erich Remarque. Charlie says he's making six pictures a year and has taken over the California studios which formerly housed the Harry Sherman Productions. He's made all his plans for picture making, but I don't believe they yet have a releasing arrangement.

Barbara Stanwyck

I AM RELIABLY informed the rights to a story built around "Alcoholics Anonymous" have been bought. The deal was for $50,000—$10,000 a year payable for research. More and more this organization is building until today it is recognized as valuable help to those who need aid in overcoming the craving for liquor.

LINDA DARNELL, for so long just another actress under contract at 20th, has suddenly blossomed out and is running neck and neck with Betty Grable, Jeanne Crain and the other top 20th beauties. Linda was given a new contract—the old one torn up. When she was in New York, people who never noticed her before went out of their way to pay court to her. I think "Fallen Angel" turned the trick for 20th when she got all the favorable comment.

JINX FALKENBURG and Tex McCrary have rented the guest house on Jock Whitney's estate in Manhasset and moved in last week. They will stay there until the baby is born in July. Tex has assumed editorship of the American Mercury, and Jinx writes she's convinced her baby will be a girl. If it is she'll call it Capri, after the beautiful island in Italy, where she and Tex spent a day together. If it is a boy she'll call it Patrick after Pat O'Brien, who, she said, acted as Cupid and is responsible for her marriage to McCrary. Sounds like the girl is happy.

THE OSTRERS are here—on big business too! Who are the Ostrers? Well they are the heads of Gainsborough's studio in England—Maurice and Isadore. They brought with them "The Wicked Lady," which they made in London and which they will arrange to show in the U. S. A. I talked with one Leslie Nicholson, who accompanied the Ostrers here, and most of his conversation was about a book he owned, "The Kingdom That Was." He says it is the gangster life of Nazis as shown by animals. I admit I was mystified. He said it is a perfect story for Walt Disney. I'll have to read the book before I'll know what it's all about, but maybe he's got something.

THE MANY FRIENDS of Phil Lennen are going to be very interested to hear he and Mrs. Thelma Beatrice Atterbery were married at Ridgefield, Ct., last Saturday morning. They left immediately for Florida, where they will honeymoon. Phil is very well liked in Hollywood, where he has visited many times. He is the head of Lennen & Mitchell Advertising Agency which handles Walter Winchell's show, my show and the Frank Sinatra show.

WE'LL HAVE a chance to compare two Pavlovas. Markova, the noted ballerina, is going to play Pavlova in the life of S. Hurok, or "Impresario," as it is now titled. And, of course, you all know that Tamara Toumanova is playing Pavlova in the life story of the premiere danseuse. In "Impresario" Pavlova is just a sequence. There are many other famous people portrayed, but the Casey Robinson picture with Toumanova is a complete life story.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Kathryn Grayson, the thrush, and Johnny Johnson, the radio singer, are in perfect tune; the Robert Shaynes have separated. He's the good looking actor in "Christmas in Connecticut"; Lana Turner is really having a whirl, according to a letter received. She's being entertained by all the bluebloods and doesn't seem to care whether she ever comes home. She has a nine-room suite at a hotel in Rio and the best is none too good for the lady; The Harold Kerns of Boston (he's the publisher of the Boston Record-American) have been having a really good time in Hollywood. They were at the Al Halls' birthday party for Joan Bennett, David Niven and Reginald Gardiner. The party was a lot of fun with birthday toasts, cakes and all the trimmings. Myrna Loy, Gene Markey, the Arthur Hornblows, Louis B. Mayer, Irene Selznick with Eddy Duchin (naturally) and many other of Joan's friends were on hand.

GEORGE MONTGOMERY hasn't been able to buy a dress suit since he left the Marines, so when Gracie Allen and George Burns said "black tie" for their soiree, George came wearing a huge black tie with his business suit; the Brown Derby is now open for breakfast and June Allyson and Dick Powell were the first customers for hot cakes; Steve Crane, who hasn't seriously concentrated on any girl since parting from Lana, was certainly not bored with Paula Drew at a Beverly restaurant; I'm hearing a lot of nice things about Russell Wade after the sneak preview of "Bamboo Blonde"; one of the best looking men in our town is Bill Boyd, and if you don't believe it you should have seen the attention he attracted at the Mocambo the other night. Van Johnson couldn't have done better. That's all today.

WASHINGTON, March 6—Running down counterfeiters is one of the big jobs of the United States Secret Service. Would you like to know where they have found — and are constantly finding— a lot of the counterfeiting plants? In jails!

Frank J. Wilson

Before you accuse me of being slug nutty, let me tell you this astounding disclosure comes straight from Frank J. Wilson, chief of the Secret Service. His revelations are utterly fantastic.

Mr. Wilson, who is given to understatement, rather than embroidery, said his agents are forever unearthing counterfeiting plants in prisons throughout the country, particularly in county jails and local hoosegows. He added:

"I do not think a period of six months goes by without our finding a case of some fellow that is serving a sentence in a county jail who has made molds for a quarter or a half-dollar and maybe something else."

Mr. Wilson, who apparently does not approve of jailbirds making a little money on the side, continued:

"They are usually working in the plumbing shop or the machine shop in the jail. It surprises me when I see these reports from the field come in so frequently. At least once every six months we have to go into a jail and prosecute a convict who is serving time, for making counterfeit coins while in jail."

MR. WILSON, being a hidebound type, sees nothing inspiring in this kind of enterprise. In fact, I gathered he is definitely set against it. He seemed quite concerned as he recounted the following:

"One of the principal counterfeiting plants we had to deal with was down in Mexico City. Look at one of these counterfeit bills. That particular counterfeit was made by a man by the name of De Shelley.

"This De Shelley, a notorious international counterfeiter, had been convicted in France, convicted in the United States, and finally convicted in Mexico in 1943 for counterfeiting our currency.

"We sent our agents down to Mexico City because counterfeit money bearing his craftmark was still coming through. We made a startling discovery. Lo and behold, we found that this man was making the counterfeit inside the penitentiary at Mexico City—while serving a sentence for counterfeiting!"

ASKED IF that meant that the Mexican penitentiaries are more advanced in penal lore than our own, Mr. Wilson reported:

"I think it means that the Mexican penitentiaries are conducted in a little more lax manner than our own federal penitentiaries. We do not find, and we do not expect to find, counterfeiting and counterfeit notes of this kind coming from any federal penitentiary in the United States. On the other hand, however, we have found them coming from State penitentiaries.

"We had one of the most notorious cases in recent times at San Quentin. The prison had a printing division where they printed material for the State of California. The convicts enlarged the activities of that division considerably in that they printed some extremely deceptive counterfeits.

"It was quite a long time before we found the source. A penitentiary should be the last place you would look to find a note counterfeiting plant."

SO, REMEMBER—if you want to make money, go to jail. It's as sound as some of the New Deal fiscal philosophy at that.

MISS BERTHA JOSEPH, secretary and one-woman brain trust to Senator George L. Radcliffe of Maryland, has decided to take up a novel collecting hobby.

Miss Joseph, who is a spinster lady and quite glad of the fact, said:

"You know that everybody around the Capitol collects something—old manuscripts, jade elephants, statuary, stamps, old Congressional directories, or something of the sort.

"I have decided to be different. You know that many of my friends have been—er—overly-active in the matrimonial line, to the point where they can hardly keep track of their divorces.

"Well—I'm going to ask them to send me their old marriage certificates!"

Boston After Dark

MANY OF THE SPELLMAN party returned home with colds, but His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman was in buoyant good health and in fine voice for his radio speech at the Metropolitan Opera House . . .

Former Postmaster-General James A. Farley was suffering from a slight cold, but said that he "felt fine" . . . Dr. Martin Spellman of Boston gained a few pounds . . . He said that the journey was thrilling throughout, but Eire impressed him most favorably of the countries visited.

INCIDENTALLY—On March 17—another member of the famous Spellman family will be awarded a degree in medicine . . . Robert Martin Spellman, elder of Dr. and Mrs. Spellman's two boys, will get his degree from Georgetown University . . . He will receive his diploma from the hands of his uncle, Cardinal Spellman, who not only will pass out the sheepskins to the graduates, but will receive an honorary degree himself . . . In the Martin Spellman family, the three doctors (after March 17th) will be Dr. Martin Spellman, Dr. Kathleen Spellman McLaurin and young Robert.

"THE FOLKS in New England with relatives and friends in Eire will be gratified to hear that the country is thriving," said Dr. Spellman. "Food is plentiful and good, and Mr. DeValera is a popular and able leader . . . One gets 'the feel' of a country even in a brief visit . . . A state of well-being seems to radiate in Eire . . . Killarney was beautiful, and I enjoyed Limerick particularly —undoubtedly because my grandmother, Honora Hayes, came from there." (The doctor's twinkling eyes sparkled at that point.)

The lamented Mrs. Hayes, by the way, was a remarkable woman and mother . . . She had 12 children of her own, and adopted another . . . The adopted son came to America, was ordained a priest in Baltimore and became a pastor of a Massachusetts church . . . Dr. Spellman, and his wife, Mrs. Louise Spellman, will return to Boston tomorrow.

PAT O'BRIEN IS AILING at the Hotel Astor . . . the popular acter is fearful that the news of his ailments—virus pneumonia, influenza and a carbuncle on his neck—might reach his wife, Eloise, in California . . . The O'Briens are expecting a first baby after 12 years of marriage, and Pat does not wish to worry Mrs. O'Brien . . . They are parents of three adopted children, and were about to adopt a fourth when confirmation came that the fourth—their own—was on the way . . . Pat's speaking voice is reduced to a whisper, but he is cheerful and in no danger, the doctors say.

MILTON BERLE'S engagement at Nicky Blair's new carnival is attracting so much patronage that police reserves are needed at night (and this is not a press agent's dream) . . . Milton is on a percentage, and the first week's gross will exceed $50,000 . . . The sum Berle will draw as his "end" will establish an all-time record for a night club salary.

THE RUSH home from Miami is on with a vengeance, and bad weather this week has sped the hegira to the North . . . The home-comers may be leaving the scene of the last wide-open gambling spots on the East coast . . . Miami this season has been unsatisfactory to restaurant and night club operators alike . . . As there must be several thousand of these influential citizens, the story may be more than a threat that they have organized to rid the sector of gambling in the future . . . The gambling joints got all the late business . . . Dog tracks, which run at night, are not regarded as competition . . . They close before midnight, and are too entrenched to be displaced . . . The interests in back of the gambling are powerful enough to offset any except the very strongest opposing bloc.

One complaint being registered by horse-players who have had to wire home for money is that the season was disastrous to everyone but the tracks and the bookmakers . . . Too many horses can be too much of a good thing because they don't run often enough to give the players a line on their form.

Look Young in Bonnet

YOU DON'T have to be a queen to wear this Sally Victor bonnet . . . but you do have to have twinkling eyes . . . clear and bright for a radiant outlook to provide dramatic and feminine background for the pale taffy color straw braid that shapes this intricate hat assembly. NBC Actress Susan Douglas has the face, the eyes and the expression to set it off admirably.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

TAKE A GOOD LONG LOOK at this Victorian and picturesque bonnet in natural straw with a big mauve satin bow under the chin . . . and at pretty NBC Actress Susan Douglas who wears it with an expression to match . . . and tell me, honestly, could you? Not . . . would you . . . but, could you? That's the question!

If you remember when bonnets were for cuddly youngsters you've dated yourself sister . . . for this season . . every mother or her daughter is bonnet-conscious and the Easter bonnet means what it says.

We know the new spring bonnets with their bright colors, sprigs of flowers and whisps of veil look lovely on the fashion models . . . but how they're going to look on you is what matters. The brilliance of the colors and the new off-the-face silhouette show up tired, lack-lustre eyes and tiny frown lines to a disadvantage.

If you feel old . . . try on one of those bonnets and let the mirror really dump you into the netherlands. For a bonnet strips the face of all its camouflage and shows up the complexion and the eyes for what they are worth.

If your eyes are bothering the bonnet problem . . . we have . . . as always . . . the right answer to your beauty problem . . . some new herbal eye pads to make your eyes bright for spring. Made from a scientific combination of soothing English herbs . . . these eye pads fit comfortably over your eyes . . . and involve no complicated routine. Just soak the pad in warm water . . . place it over your eyes and relax. In 10 minutes . . . the herbs have worked their magic . . . you arise refreshed . . . the wear and tear of the day forgotten and every sign of that tired, irritated sting whisked away.

Your bonnet will have a better chance of survival if the eyes under it are not robbed of sparkle and youthful glitter . . . that look that is the American woman's greatest charm. For the beauty of your whole face is dependent upon the beauty written in your eyes. And when the eyes shine contentedly . . . the whole outlook is similarly enlivened.

Each pad contains herbs of sufficient strength to serve you three or four times . . . so dry the eye pad after each use and put it away for repeated eye refreshment.

For the name of these herbal eye pads, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, in care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Acting Like Silly Children

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm writing to find out whether or not my best girl friend should talk to a boy whom she likes or wait until he does something about it. Frankly, I think she has waited long enough already.

They are both in their teens, and their romance started when she first moved here about a year and a half ago. He came down to see her day and night, and then one night she saw him keeping company with another girl, so she and I and two other boys went walking together. Since then, her boy friend hasn't talked to her, except when she talks first. He won't speak first if anyone else is around.

My friend was the first girl he ever liked. He started going with another girl, but it didn't last long. Do you think my girl friend still has a chance with him, and what should she do about it, as she still likes him very much? He keeps staring at her whenever he has a chance but they are too stubborn to say anything to one another. B. G.

Don't you think both of these young people are acting like silly children? Usually, when people are in the teen age, they want more than anything else to appear mature in their behavior. Tell your girl friend to stop sulking like a six-year-old and act as she naturally would with this boy. If he doesn't respond the same way, she's well rid of anyone so childish.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Last summer I met a fellow I like very much. He is four years older than I am. Unknown to me, he was engaged at the time I went out with him.

He has told me he loves me, but has told my sister that he only intends to take me for a dope, and that he gives all the girls the same line.

He is going into the Army very shortly, and has given me quite a sum of money to hold for him when he gets his first furlough. When he is around me, he acts so nice and polite, and if anyone says anything about me, he'll start a fight right away. My problem is, should I bother with him, or just treat him like any other fellow? D. H. W.

I'd just treat him like any other fellow, and I'd certainly hand his money back to him, but quick! Let him put it in the bank or give it to his mother to keep for him. If you let him make you responsible for his funds, you would be a dope and no fooling.

Do You Want Jam, Preserves In Your Biscuits or on Them?

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

BISCUITS ARE BELL-RINGERS these roaring March days when extra energy and staying-quality are particularly desirable in foods. Biscuits can be whisked together into interesting variations simply by changing shapes and fillings. The cinnamon-roll fashion finds favor because it can hold so many different delicious fillings. Simply roll biscuit dough out to a rectangular sheet ¼ inch thick. Spread with cinnamon-sugar and raisins, if desired. Roll up like a jelly-roll and cut in 1-inch slices. Place cut side down in greased muffin pans and bake.

Do you want your jam or preserves in your biscuits instead of on them? Then spread jam thinly over rolled out dough. Roll it up like a jelly-roll, cut in 1-inch slices and bake.

A surprise filling guaranteed to tempt appetites is a filling of brown sugar, currants and cinnamon.

To give new zest to an old favorite, add grated nippy cheese or chopped parsley, or both, to the biscuit mixture just before adding the milk. For St. Patrick's Day, these biscuits cut like shamrocks add a festive note. They taste excellent as a foundation for creamed eggs, too.

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup shortening
⅔ cup milk (about)

Mix and sift dry ingredients; cut in shortening until well mixed and add milk, stirring quickly until a soft but not sticky dough is formed. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead just enough to shape into smooth ball; roll lightly or pat ½ inch thick, and cut with floured biscuit cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet, ½ inch apart for a crusty biscuit and close together for a tall, soft biscuit; bake in very hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 14 2-inch biscuits.

CREAMED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
2 cups medium white sauce
2 tbsp. tomato ketchup
6 slices buttered hot toast

Cut eggs in eighths, lengthwise; heat gently in white sauce seasoned with ketchup; serve on toast. Makes 6 servings.

For a quick Lenten dish, spread flaked salmon on rolled-out biscuit dough. Roll up the dough and bake it as one large roll, or slice it and bake the slices as individual servings. Serve with white sauce to which a touch of mustard and horseradish have been added.

OTHER VARIATIONS OF BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

Cheese Biscuits: Cut ½ cup grated cheese into flour with shortening.

Orange Biscuits: Cut dough in 1-inch rounds. Press ½ lump of sugar dipped in orange juice into top of each biscuit. Sprinkle with grated orange rind. Makes about 2½ dozen 1-inch biscuits. Serve at teatime, or with cocoa or coffee as an evening snack.

Butterscotch Rolls: Roll biscuit dough ¼ inch thick. Cream 1-3 cup butter with 1-3 cup brown sugar, firmly packed, and spread mixture on dough. Roll is for jelly-roll. Cut into 1-inch slices. Bake cut side down in greased muffing pans or on greased baking sheet in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 15 minutes. Makes 12 rolls.

Scottish Tea Scones: Divide dough in half; roll each into a round piece ½ inch thick and cut in quarters. Bake slowly on greased, hot griddle about 20 minutes, turning frequently for even browning; split open, butter and place in oven to melt butter. Makes 8 scones.

Long Jackets for Women

By BETTINA BEDWELL

JACKETS may, and have, gone long for women, but for juniors they are still sold short. They hardly ever grow longer than the waistline when they're made for the younger set, and likely as not they'll be bolero length, ending above that strategic point.

The junior bolero suit for this spring is at its peak of chic when it is made of navy blue wool like the model in our sketch, and when it is spiced with frosty white pique of which the dickey of this suit is made, it is considered tops. The easy swing of the skirt, the high belt and the soft cuffed sleeves of the jacket are all style points to consider.

Former Ice Queens

GRETCHEN MERRILL'S winning of the figure skating championship at Chicago this week and her front page picture on Life set us to wondering what many of the other Boston society girls who won national fame as skaters in the past decade are doing nowadays.

After some research we found that when romance skated into their lives the former queens of the Silver Skates reverted to type and forgot all about their careers in favor of being happy wives and mothers.

Gretchen Merrill

The only exception is Maribel Vinson who has combined homelife and motherhood with a skating career. With Guy Owens, one of Canada's top ranking skating stars, as her husband and a dazzling record of U. S. championships behind her, Maribel has continued serious skating and she and Guy produce and skate in their own colorful ice show. Currently visiting her parents, the Thomas Vinsons of Winchester, they leave next week for an engagement in Baltimore and will skate at the Copley Plaza in the spring. They are very proud of their two little girls, Maribel, 5, who is visiting her grandparents in Canada and learning to speak French at a Canadian kindergarten, and Laurence who is nearly two.

George (Jeddy) E. B. Hill of Cambridge, Maribel's partner when she won the pairs championship six consecutive years, is specializing in modern architecture in California. He recently moved his wife, the former Leslie Eustis, Boston deb, and their two children to San Francisco to live.

Maribel was maid of honor for Suzanne Davis of Waban from whom she won the national women's title in '35. Sue married a man from the deep South, William H. King of Richmond, and seldom has a chance to skate. They have a boy and a girl and spend many summers at Cape Cod where Sue and her brothers inherited a house. Sue was on the West Coast while her husband was there in the Navy.

Like many Navy wives Mrs. Robert Watson (Polly Blodgett) traveled a great deal during the war to be near her officer husband but they are now settled with their two little girls in Cohasset. Since his release from the Navy Mr. Watson has been appointed associate dean at Harvard. The diminutive Polly who won the national junior championship and was the darling of Boston's ice skating fans, still practices at the Skating Club but not for competition any more.

She saw a great deal last month of Joan Tozzer Spalding who came home from Honolulu to visit her parents, Prof. and Mrs. Alfred Tozzer of Cambridge, for the first time since Pearl Harbor. Joan preceded Gretchen Merrill as the U. S. women's champion. Her husband, Bill Spalding, scion of a prominent Honolulu family, has just started a pineapple plantation of his own. They have three youngsters who love to watch Joan skate on the rare occasions when an artificial ice rink is available in Hawaii.

Theresa Weld Blanchard (Mrs. Charles) of Brookline, whose name is also famous in ice skating records, is editor of the national skating magazine and a leader in social events at the Skating Club of Boston. Grace Madden Stevenson, winner of the national doubles many times with her brother Jimmy, has three youngsters and lives in New York. Jimmy is president of a large Boston paper company.

Ann Sothern Due at State Screen in 'Up Goes Maisie'

The heroine of the Common Man, Maisie Ravier, is back on the screen again in "Up Goes Maisie," which comes to the State screen tomorrow in company with "Close Call for Blackie." The engagement is limited to one week only.

At the Orpheum, "The Harvey Girls," with Judy Garland, Ray Bolger and a host of Metro's loveliest, continues for a third and final week, terminating a week from tonight.

As the irresistible Maisie, Ann Sothern clowns her way through new laughs and adventures, dodging wolves, as usual.

In her last film adventure, she has to resort to horn-rimmed cheaters and a dowdy outfit to get a job from George Murphy, inventor of a helicopter. Maisie, Murphy and Horace McNally offer a toast to the finished helicopter, not suspecting that McNally is the spy of a gang of crooks who plan to steal the vitally important invention. Of course, Maisie outwits him and finds romance with Murphy.

THAT IRREPRESSIBLE MAISIE (Ann Sothern) is in love again, this time with George Murphy. You'll be seeing them on Loew's State screen, starting tomorrow, in "Up Goes Maisie."

'Flamingo Road' at Wilbur Pinks Customers' Cheeks

By PEGGY DOYLE

Sex is taking no holiday this Lenten week on the rialto, what with the Shubert's Monday night opener, "Carmen Jones," and last night's "Flamingo Road," at the Wilbur, pinking the customers' cheeks with their harsher facts-of-life revelations.

"Flamingo Road," a dramatization by Robert and Sally Wilder of Wilder's best-selling novel, has some of the most raffish dialogue heard in the theater since Mae West's play, "Sex," had the shocked police standing guard in a Broadway lobby.

In their first play, the Wilders are anything but inhibited. As a consequence, Boston's new play-censor, Sam Nesson, may have writer's cramp this morning. This neighboring aisle-sitter observed him industriously operating an Ever-Sharp, particularly during the second act scene in Madame Lute-Mae Saunders' enticingly flamingo-hued if, what may be dubiously termed, ill-famed parlor.

It is entirely possible that some of the unprintable observations made by Lute-Mae, of over-conspicuous charms, and of her masculine guests of the evening may be blue-pencilled by curtain-time tonight.

These delegations, though they may be a source of annoyance to the sensation-mongers, are not apt to devitalize a fundamentally rugged if faulty play.

Considerable work and the knowing craftsmanship of a stage-wise play-doctor are indicated. Last night's unveiling disclosed some major weaknesses of construction, several unresolved situations and inadequately developed characterizations as well as the need for accelerated pacing.

The first act, notably slow-motion, serves mainly to establish the play's motivating evil force, a gargantuan, apparently slothful front porch-sitter of a sheriff played by Francis J. Felton, the erstwhile "Happy" Felton of Olson and Johnson's road company "Hellzapoppin."

Felton's Titus Semple, a poor man's Huey Long, is monstrously menacing in an easy-does-it fashion. It is an excellent characterization but it doesn't go quite far enough, and the fault is in the writing, not in the playing.

Somehow, for such a persistent frontporch rocker he seems to achieve an inhuman amount of political spade-work.

There also is an unsatisfactory dearth of opposition on the part of destiny's local political standins to presumptuous gubernatorial aspirations of this hate-ridden, weight-hipped, overaged fat-boy.

Another detail never made clear is whether Judith Parrish's Lane Ballou loves Lauren Gilbert's ineffectual newspaperman or Philip Bourneuf's pushed-around county commissioner who rescues her from Lute-Mae's.

On the credit side, in addition to Felton's surprisingly well achieved change of character, are Miss Parrish's tough but not hard ex-carnival girl, Will Geer's lazy-talking but shrewd newspaper editor, Olvester Polk's enviably poised Negro porter, the third act's live-as-a-nerve first scene and Watson Barratt's locale-establishing Florida small town sets.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Wednesday, March 6, 1946

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are idealistic, should like scientific and mechanical knowledge. Fond of travel, research, history. Often lack self-confidence, causing lack of proper aggressiveness. Will work with patience and persistency when interested. Faults: Restlessness, obstinacy, worry over health. Birthdate of Gen. Philip Sheridan, Civil War leader; Ring Lardner, famed writer; Lily Langtry, actress; Elizabeth Browning, English poetess.

Lingering Thoughts Of Sunny Florida

By JACK CONWAY

WALTERBORO, S. C., March 6—Thoughts on leaving Florida . . . Lou Boudreau's remarks about the Red Sox . . . The manager of the Cleveland Indians, speaking at the club's training camp at Clearwater, Fla., declaring the Red Sox have the batting and the fielding, and that they should win the American League pennant . . . Naming the Yanks to finish second, the Tigers third and the Indians fourth.

Lou Boudreau

Boudreau is of the opinion that Bob Feller will have a great year on the mound, but believes that Cleveland lacks the power to fight it out for the flag with the Sox, Yanks and Tigers.

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, looking very alert and keen as he had dinner with his ball players in the dining room of the George Washington Hotel at West Palm Beach . . . Mack, still the student of the game, is as enthusiastic about baseball as he was 60 years ago when he played the game himself . . . Youthful ball players back from service making good in a big way, but still able to appreciate the blonde hostess who had charm as well as more than her share of good looks . . . Mack telling this writer that he was going to string along with the Yanks to win the pennant, and that he believes the Red Sox will be runners-up . . . Mack believes the Yanks have what it takes when the big chips are down . . . Stories from Panama say Joe McCarthy has regained his health and that the club has found its old batting punch . . . Joe DiMaggio, Stuffy Stirnweiss and Charley Keller have what is needed when the big jam is on.

Taxicab drivers complaining that business has dropped off . . . Now that even former A card holders can drive to Florida, there is not such a big demand for taxicabs . . . All records for the number of autos at Miami, Palm Beach and Daytona have been shattered . . . Driving along the sands at Daytona Beach where the sand is as hard as the pavement on Washington st. . . . And thinking of the famous auto drivers who have made more than 100 miles an hour in races along this beach . . . And of the newspaper photographer, who, perched at a hazardous turn, risks his life in an effort to get an outstanding picture . . . Newspaper photographers are always willing to take the risks that go with getting good pictures . . . Billy McCarthy, who books the football games at Fenway Park, for some strange reason tries to keep the photographers as far away from the scene of action as possible . . . Good pictures build up interest in sports.

Housing Boom On

If you need housing material and cannot get it, I suggest that you visit Florida and find out how to get what you want . . . A great building boom is on . . . Homes and commercial buildings are being put up . . . Hollow concrete blocks and steel are in abundance, while the necessary lumber is also available . . . Thousands of service men have secured jobs in the construction business and are receiving top wages.

The building boom also extends into the Carolinas . . . While Florida has the beauty of the tropics, South Carolina is having an early spring which should give hope to New Englanders who have suffered one of the most severe winters in years . . . As this writer motored north, he saw budding trees and green grass on all sides . . . he is still wearing the same clothes he had on at Palm Beach and Miami.

The Carolinas have some of the finest golf courses in the United States . . . It will be another month, however, before the big time golfers reach here . . . Freddy Cochrane, Byron Nelson and the crack professional golfers will be at the Palm Beach Country Club next week . . . Bert Nichols, professional at the Belmont Country Club, holds a similar post at the Palm Beach Country Club . . . Golf fees in Florida have been hiked to $3, while the caddy fees are $2 a round . . . One club just outside of Palm Beach charges a greens fee of $5 and $3 for a caddy.

For one to play, he must have the blessing of a member who has kicked in with $300 for a bond.

Hotel Jam Eased

There are now plenty of available rooms in Florida . . . March 1 always sees thousands of people starting for the north and this year has not been an exception . . . Black market operators, who have been betting thousands of dollars at gambling houses, shivering because G-men watched their operations and are ready to crack down on them for income tax evasion . . . Swanky Club 86, in Miami, going to Supreme Court in Florida to make local judge prove why he is not disqualified for hearing case . . . delay, of course, will enable club to operate until season ends . . . Club 86 giving $5000 to aid drive against infantile paralysis, and chairman Cleary, a former race track steward, declaring he will also ask other gambling clubs to kick in for this worthy charity . . . Cleary knows gambling money can help save sick youngsters.

Sirde, Man o' Glory Show Speed in $100,000 Tests

ARCADIA, Cal., March 6 (AP)—Sparkling workouts and the important question of who's going to ride which entry occupied the attention of horsemen today as Santa Anita began to run a temperature over Saturday's $100,000 handicap.

As far as Ed mulrenan's favored First Fiddle was concerned, everything was all set. The Fiddle, fourth ranking all-time money winner, worked a leisurely mile and one-eighth yesterday in 1.54 4-5. Veteran Johnny Longden, winner of three stakes at the current meet, will be aboard the 7-year-old gray horse.

But the works that brought clockers up short were Sirde's 2:02 3 5 and Man O' Glory's 2:03 3-5 for the mile and one quarter handicap distance. Sirde, coupled with Snow boots as Mrs. A. L. Rice's entry, will pack 117 pounds and Man O' Glory only 114, compared with First Fiddle's top 126.

Snow Boots breezed the same distance in 2:05, after a slow start. Jockey Basil James is tabbed for Snow Boots, with Otto Grohs probably aboard Sirde. C. S. Howard's Mediterranean was clocked in 2:06 1-5. Conn McCreary again is coming out from Florida to ride Tom Taylor's Bric A Bac, and Aaron Hirschberg is after Job Dean Jessop, 1945's top rider, for his filly threat, Canina.

Bruins Battle Wings To Break 3d Place Tie

By FRED HOEY

Sharing a third-place tie with the Detroit Red Wings, the Bruins will have to put on exceptional pressure tonight when they tackle these flying Wings at the Garden. The Wings have not been beaten in their last eight games. On the other hand the Bruins have one win to show for their last five starts, all on the road.

It was only a few weeks ago that Detroit appeared like another weak sister in the league. Today, the team is flying. Which is further proof that it's mighty risky to count out a team that happens to hit a slump. The Bruins can snap out of it quite as quickly as did Detroit. This may be the night.

Manager Art Ross and Coach Dit Clapper will hurl all their power against the Wings. Bill Shill returns to take over his right wing berth. Trainer Win Green reports all other players on edge. Naturally enough, the Bruins are a bit weary after their two-week road trip. But the sight of home ice after some home cooking should help the boys.

The Bruins have reinforcements in town, but they are not ready for much competition. Gordie Bruce may see brief action, but it is doubtful if Roy Conacher is used.

Bill Cowley is here but not ready to play. His ailing left hand is mending slowly. Bill believes he might get into the Toronto game. Ross and Clapper will take no chances with this valuable bit of hockey bric-a-bac.

Cowley saw the Bruins in action against the Ottawa All-Stars last week. He liked the work of Conacher and Bruce, mates on his own line.

Two other Bruins who have been serving with the RFCA are here working out. They are Lloyd Gronsdal and Bus Wycherley. These two players will need plenty of practice before they will be ripe. Ross has ordered daily skating sessions at the Arena.

The Bruins need help. It begins to look as though they will have plenty of it by play-off time, March 19.

'Kos' Leaves H. C. For Long Layoff

WORCESTER, March 6 (AP)—Stan Koslowski, the halfback star on last season's Holy Cross Orange Bowl football team, has withdrawn from college and returned to his Rumford, R. I., home. He completed his sophomore year about two weeks ago.

"My plans are indefinite and I'm tired and I feel I should take a long rest," Koslowski told college officials. "I now have two years of college to my credit and I guess I'll just stay around and play a lot of golf until September."

The purple backfield star, who was voted New England's outstanding 1945 college player, refused to discuss his future football plans.

He is one the draft list of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League and, it is understood, has received attractive professional offers from Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco entries in the new All-American Conference.

Joe Louis Starts Training Tomorrow

CHICAGO, March 6 (INS)—Just one more day of rest for Joe Louis—and then work, work, and more work.

That was the prospect facing the heavyweight champion of the world today as he stopped off in Chicago en route from golfing in Los Angeles to rigorous training at West Baden Springs, Ind.

Track Lobby Charge Studied

The joint legislative rules committee of 20 members listened for two hours today to Rep. Cornelius Desmond amplify his charge that $100,000 had been spent to influence race track legislation.

At the conclusion, Sen. Arthur W. Coolidge, the chairman, made this statement: "We listened to everything Rep. Desmond had to say. We also asked questions. There was a stenographer present and notes on the entire matter will be available in a couple of days. There is nothing to be said now."

Desmond, who has filed an order calling for a $50,000 probe of all measures enacted since 1940, hurried from the hearing room without comment.

Bill Asks 5 P. C. Race Tax for N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 6 (AP)—Legislation authorizing New York City to impose a 5 per cent tax on pari-mutuel play was introduced today.

The measure is the first of several planned to permit Mayor William O'Dwyer to levy new taxes of approximately $100,000,000 a year for the next four years.

The bill empowers New York City to levy a 5 per cent tax on pari-mutuel betting at Jamaica, Aqueduct and Belmont Park horse racing tracks in addition to the state tax now in force.

O'Dwyer estimates the yield from this one source would be approximately $10,000,000 a year.

Under terms of the bill, 75 per cent of the proceeds of the new tax received from Belmont Park would be paid to Nassau County and 25 per cent to Nw York City. Most of Blmont Park lies in Nassau Cunty, the rest in New York City.

The bill would continue the taxing authority until July 1, 1950.

HOOP TOURNEY MARCH 19

The 14th Annual Boston Basketball Championship Tournament, conducted by the Boston Amateur Basketball Commission, will be held at the South Boston Boys' Club on March 19, 20, 26, 27, 29th, it was announced today by Henry McCarthy, chairman of the commission.

Callahan Card 4 Ten-Rounders

Four 10-round bouts have been lined up for a Callahan Club ring show at the Garden on March 18, Sam Silverman said today. The lineup and battling order reads:

Jackie Harris, Malden, vs. Spider Armstrong, Boston; Buddy Hayes, South End, vs. Midget Mayo, Philadelphia; Tommy Greb, West End, vs. Tony Costa, Woonsocket, and Tommy Sullivan, South Boston, vs. John Henry Eskew, Brockton.

Silverman regards the March 18 card as his Hub masterpiece.

Only Midget Mayo is a newcomer to Boston but Silverman gives him a spot on this night of tumult because Mayo is a punching featherweight who fits into the scene.

March 14 being the occasion for the St. Patrick's Day parade and celebration, the Callahan A. C. has daubed the fight-test with a tinge of Eire. Sullivan, Hayes and Harris all have attachments to the Old Sod, Harris being Irish-Scotch-Indian like Jack Dempsey.

The Eskew - Sullivan collision has been in the making for months, Silverman finally clinched it. Costa is a boxing curio in that he has whipped no less than five title-holders yet is not a champion himself. Costa, recently out of the U. S. Navy, has beaten Bartolo, Archibald, Jack Wilson, Jack Callura and Terranova. He's fast company for Greb.

Browns Sell Jakucki To San Antonio

ST. LOUIS, March 6 (INS)—Right-handed pitcher Sigmund Jakucki was no longer a St. Louis Brown today. Jakucki, winner of 12 and loser of 10 games last season, was sold by the Browns to their San Antonio club of the Texas League.

He was suspended indefinitely late last season by Manager Luke Sewell because Sewell said the pitcher did not keep in good physical condition.

Brady Looks Like Champ

Two-fisted Dennis Patrick Brady, 133, the Harp from Hartford, who has all the fistic equipment required to be a champion, hooked, chopped and hammered his way to a unanimous 10-round decision over Walter "Cabey" Lewis, 129, Brooklyn, in the feature of a Goodwin A. C. show before 3000 last night at the Arena.

Brady, bouncing around and busy throughout with both dukes, gave Lewis a lacing, barraging him to the body and head as he swept every round—only a few of them close. Lewis was sagged by a long left hook in the fourth, punched and pushed out of the ring for a count of five in the fifth.

Al Smith, 131, Roxbury, had an edge in every round in compiling a unanimous 8-round decision over Alvin Hudson, 134, Bath, Me., in the semi-final.

Portly Larry Pacino, 164, Roxbury, launching a comeback, kayoed Jimmy Pettie, 160, Woburn, at 2:39 of the first round. Pettie was decked for one, five and then, under the impact of a resounding right, for 10.

Buddy Brown, 157, Boston, and Eddie Rossi, 161, Everett, wound up inseparable after six socking rounds. Judge Bill McMenimen voted Brown; Referee Larry Manning and Judge Tom Kirby voted draw.

Frank Waters, 130, North End, punched out a four-round decision over Charlie Kelley, 128, Toronto.

Provincetown Dazzles Tech Fans

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Schoolboy sports fans will certainly appreciate the breathing spell that they'll have today in the open date on the schedule of the Eastern Mass. basketball championships before they gather up energy for their return to the Garden tomorrow afternoon for the semi-final round in Class C competition.

The twin semi-final pitting Provincetown against Somerset and Stetson against Weston, will start the roar for the opening of the A meetings tomorrow night.

Off the play of the opening round, there's little doubt that the Cape Codders of Coach Dave Murphy will be an odds-on favorite to speed to the minor crown. They'd hardly broken all existing schoolboy scoring records in the Garden than the fans were mumbling that the little school on the tip of the Cape should have been placed in Class B—or even up in A.

Actually, Provincetown has only 60-odd boys in the school to make up this amazing, speedy club.

Coach Murphy, a Holy Cross alumnus, has chalked up an amazing record at his little school in his four years. He had an undefeated slate in his debut (8-0) and, since that time, he's had a 19-1 campaign, a 17-1 and this winter he now boasts 16-1. Maybe it's just a Holy Cross year as far as the Garden is concerned!

There wasn't a sign of jitters on the little club as Capt. Frank Meads opened the scoring with a neat lay-up and the drive continued until Phil Cabral, a sub, contributed the 68th point against Ipswich's 31.

Provincetown's mark eclipsed the New England tourney high of 56 held by Waterville; the New Bedford 53 in Tech tourney play and the 59 of South Boston and South Kingston during the regular season of play.

Winthrop and Rockland provided the thrill of the evening with a hat hoisting game which was won in the final minute by a foul sunk by Dick Sears.

In the last two minutes the lead changed five times. Myron Atlas helped Winthrop with a foul shot while in agony after being belted on his broken little finger. He was forced to leave the game immediately after putting his team out front.

Braintree, the defending champion of this Class B, walloped Barnstable and this victory gave Bill Irwin a chance to meet Rockland in the semi-final.

The city of Boston champions, Commerce, were kayoed by a hot Belmont team. Yet, Belmont was not without its scare, for the Commerce five led by a point at the end of the first period. Then they fell apart as Dick Fahey tolled up 25 points.

Lexington made an easy target of the undefeated Dedham record to advance to the semi-finals.

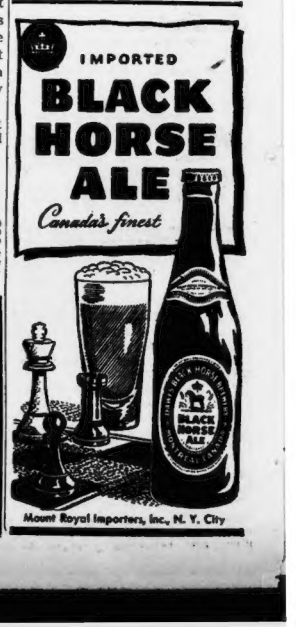
Talbert Top Seeded For Indoor Tennis

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Talbert, second ranking player in the nation, was seeded No. 1 in the draw today for the national indoor tennis tournament starting here March 9. The U. S. Lawn Tennis Ass'n accepted 48 entries for the tourney.

Seeded behind Talbert, twice runner-up to Frankie Parker in the U. S. outdoor singles championships of 1944-45, were Don McNeill, Francisco Segura, Elwood Cooke, Sidney Wood and Lt. Cmdr. Gardnar Mulloy.

Alejo Russell of Argentina and Enrique Buse of Peru were named in that order in a special foreign seeding.



Pellagrini Stars; Can He Make Sox?

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 6—One of sweet mysteries of life among returning Red Sox veterans is that Jim Tabor was cast adrift. All admired his combative qualities. "What have we got to replace him"- they ask. Well, let's look over the third base field on this "now or never" team.

There are Ernie Andres, Eddie Pellagrini, Don Lang, Ken Chapman, Ty Laforest, Jim Tobin, Ben Steiner and Glenn Russell.

Andres is supposed to have the job in his back pocket. He was slated for it as far back as '42 but war intervened. As a member of the Louisville club he had led the A. A. in homers, doubles, RBI and total bases. He played fine ball for Mickey Cochrane's Great Lakes nine.

He isn't fast. He isn't a smooth fielder. His arm appears only "fair to middlin'." Yet he's a handsome giant with a reputation as a "clutch" hitter, and everybody who ever played with him says he'll do.

Don Lang hits a long ball, is a pretty good all-round player. But he doesn't figure, nor do Laforest, currently handicapped with a sore arm; Tobin, Russell or Steiner despite the fact at least three A. L. clubs would like to use Steiner at second, where he played for the Sox last year.

Ken Chapman is a collegiate-appearing Mansfield lad who has the earmarks of a future great. He's a Hughey Duffy pupil who "hits through the box" a la Duffy, as Mace Brown has learned. But the Sox don't like that "hitch" in his batting swing, though it is easy to recall that Travis Jackson had a "hitch", and Jackson did all right, did he not?

So the battle seems to devolve around Andres and Pellagrini. The latter has been handicapped with a sore arm, grippe and sore leg. He didn't make his official debut until yesterday's game. Andres was nursing a sore leg muscle, so Pelly played third on one side, Chapman on the other.

Pelly lined a 400-foot drive to center on his first time at bat, but McBride tucked it away. It was one of the best-stroked balls of the day. He beat out a hit to short on his second trip, though he was called out. He looked fast going down the line. In the field he made several sparkling plays, most notable of which was a backhand stab of a Chapman bounder over the bag and a lightning throw to first. Though Chapman was safe, Pelly showed he has perhaps the strongest arm in camp. The ball didn't rise four feet off the ground.

It's been proved, especially in '42, that the more one writes about the home town boys, the earlier they get the "Louisville" or "Scranton" tag. Because of that, we've refrained heretofore from mentioning Pellagrini, Chapman and LaForest.

One thing is sure, however: if Pellagrini doesn't stick with this ball club, something's wrong somewhere.

Joe Dobson . . . the greatest March pitcher in baseball. Writers have seen him hurl no-hitters in the spring, blank the Braves in the city series yet, turn out to be a losing pitcher during the championship season. Perhaps he's benefited by his term as manager of a West Coast Army team. "I'm thinking more than I used to," he apologizes. Nobody in the league can figure why he doesn't win 30, not 20, games a year.

Hughson, Ferriss, Harris, Johnson, Ryba and Wagner made their debut to in the third intrasquad game. All figure to be kept . . . here's a bet, if Happy Chandler will let us make one, Metkovich will be the right-fielder over Pete Fox, Johnny Lazor or Sam Mele.

130 Night Games In A. L. Circuit

NEW YORK, March 6 (INS)—The American League's 1946 schedule, released today, reveals that no less than 130 night games will be played in the junior circuit this year, in addition to six twilight games at Detroit.

St. Louis leads in night games with 42, followed by Washington with 32.

Opening day games on April 16 are St. Louis at Detroit, Cleveland at Chicago, Boston at Washington and New York at Philadelphia.

The Boston club has changed the date of its home opening. The Red Sox have cancelled the two games they had scheduled for Good Friday, April 19, in Boston against Philadelphia.

Boston will open its home season the following day, Saturday, April 20, with a single game against Philadelphia. A doubleheader will be played with Philadelphia at Boston on Sunday, April 21. The second cancelled game of April 19 will be played off on an open date, Friday, Aug. 30, at Boston.

Many Players on 'Blacklists'

By BILL GRIMES

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 6—After observing the wartime and of major league baseball, which wasn't even a reasonable facsimile of the top ade of the national pastime, the scribe, if he possesses a bump of caution, is constantly guarding against going off the deep end this year.

Since the close of the 1942 campaign, run-of-the-mill ball players have ruled the roost. They were in such demand that they brought black market prices if they were in the 4-F classification with even average minor league ability. Realizing that they had the major league club owners in the middle, the 4-effers demanded top salaries and other concessions.

The major league magnates have "blacklists" of the players who let them down during the emergency. The magnates are having their revenge now.

There are far more players holding out this spring than at almost any time in the past. Why? Because they received contracts which were cut to the quick.

The scribe appreciates the post war talent as much as the players relish being back on baseball pay rolls. He is watching a brand of ball he has not seen since the draft boards went into action in the fall of 1942.

However, the Braves players who were in the service, haven't developed as much as they would have in organized ball. True, they played ball for the Army, Navy, Coast Guard or Marines, but few of them were allotted enough time to round into condition to be at their best form. And many players who crashed the headlines for achievements on the diamond while serving Uncle Sam will have plenty of trouble living up to the reputations acquired during the war.

So, it is advisable for the scribe to mark time until he has seen more of the returnees and new acquisitions to the Tribe under National League pressure. It has been apparent that Billy Southworth's system is a decided variation from the usual routine. With the exceptions of Mort Cooper and Johnny Hopp, none of the Braves has been with a winner. They've spent their N. L. days with second division clubs. But for the fact that they are now under the leadership of a capable manager who takes nothing for granted and drills them on the fundamentals of the game, they could, and probably would, develop second division complexes. Again, however, there's a limit to Southworth's ability to prod a outfit unless he has the proper "tool"

That is one of the reasons the scribe must bide his time and wait until he sees ha the Braves react to a type of baseball which required perfect co-ordination between physical actions and mind.

Baseball Bans Schoolboys

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—H. V. Porter of Chicago, executive secretary of the National Federation of State High School Associations, said today the organization had reached an agreement with professional baseball aimed to prevent tampering with high school athletes before they are graduated.

Porter said the federation, after a 10-year campaign, had reached an agreement with Baseball Commissioner A. B. ("Happy") Chandler which provides a $500 fine to be levied against any team which lures a high school athlete into organized baseball.

It also provides, Porter said, that the club be permanently barred from using the player.

Mrs. L. W. Keen Mothers Junior Skiers

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

FRANCONIA, N. H., Mar. 6—Mrs. Louis W. Keen is known as "Mama" throughout this region, and rightly so, for this energetic lady has reorganized the Junior Ski Club after four years of inactivity, and is doing everything in her power to help 'teen-aged skiers. She is justifiably proud of her 15-year-old, 190-pound son, Wyman, who is president of the Juniors. This sturdy lad is a promising racer. He placed second in the Walter Foley Memorial Slalom recently, and has been carrying off many prizes in school meets.

"There are about 60 youngsters in the club at present," stated Mrs. Keen, "and they all love to ski. Thanks to Roger Peabody, Sig. Buchmayr, and Hans Thorner, who donate their time one afternoon each week, the boys and girls are becoming experts on the boards." These three instructors rank among the top professionals in the country, so the youth of Franconia are indeed fortunate to have their guidance.

Hubert Pantz allows the juniors to use the rope tow on his Mittersill Slope free of charge, while Ed Blood, former Olympic and U. of N. H. star, gives them some pointers at this spot.

An Interscholastic meet was held last week-end at Bethlehem, N. H., where Wyman Keen led his Dow Academy team to victory, with first places in both the slalom and downhill events. His teammate, Rudy Nelson, pushed and poled to win the two-mile cross country jaunt . . . From such lads as these will come America's future ski champs!

SKI SCRIBBLINGS: Lowell Thomas, famed commentator, who spent the past week here for the National Championships, announced that he will present a trophy in honor of the late Capt. Vic Constant, of West Point. A committee consisting of Roland Peabody, Sepp Ruschp, and Alex Bright has been named to determine the best type of race—and the date—to provide a fitting memorial for the popular ski coach.

Barney McLean, National Combined champ, and Dick Movitz, Slalom champ, will not head west until after the Eastern Jumping Championships at Laconia, N. H., next weekend. Dick broke his jumping skis in the Nationals at Steamboat Springs, Col., and may have to borrow a pair . . . Bernard Herbert, Franconia, who placed 13th in the slalom Sunday, turned in a smashing performance, for this 23-year-old ex-Ski Trooper had not raced since high school days! . . . Wonder why there wasn't an amplifying system installed at these races to give names and times of runners?

Strike-Proof Phone Line

RIPLEY, Tenn., March 6 (AP)—Residents of rural Tibbs, Tenn., aren't worrying about the threatened phone strike.

They have their own telephone system—one of the world's queerest.

All 15 of the phones are on one party line and conversations are carried via barbed-wire fences.

The system was devised by Jack Bishop, recently discharged Army radio technician. While overseas, Bishop shipped some captured Italian and German field telephones home.

After leaving the Army, he installed three of the phones, linking the home of his grandparents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tibbs, and two tenant farmers. They were hooked up to the top strand of a barbed-wire fence.

It worked so fine, Bishop says, other relatives and neighbors wanted to get in.

The signal system is pretty complicated, but Bishop says everybody listens in anyway, so you can always get your party by ringing almost any signal.

Upset Stomach

Relieved in 5 minutes or double your money back

When excess stomach acid causes painful suffocating gas, sour stomach and heartburn, doctors usually prescribe the fastest-acting medicines known for neutralizing this acid—Bisodol Powder. Just ask for Bisodol—the Scientific Stomach Relief. No laxative. Bell-ans brings comfort in a jiffy or double your money back on return of bottle to us. 25c at all druggists.

Here's How To Have Daily Regularity AFTER 35*

Nature has placed a marvelous hydrogel substance in apples, prunes and many foods to help you keep regular. As you grow older, you may need more of these foods, but you eat less. That is why thousands of folks never 35 have turned to Serutan. Serutan is a concentrate of hydrogel substances, not a pill, not salts, not an oil, but a vegetable concentration that provides a smooth, soft jell to aid more normal, natural elimination. Why does yourself with harsh purgative or habit forming drugs when it is so easy to enjoy the tasty, toast like granules of Serutan right along with your meals? Sold by all drug stores on a money-back guarantee. Try Serutan today!

*For occasional constipation, see a doctor.

'Dust Thou Art'—The Lenten season is ushered in today at St. Clement's Church, Back Bay, with the distribution of ashes in traditional services by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing after he celebrated a special mass this morning. Ashes were also distributed in the Episcopal, Lutheran and several Presbyterian churches, while penitential services were conducted by all faiths. INP by Harry Simard

Crushed

Firemen remove the body of Ina Hipwell, 18-year-old East Boston girl, from Lewis Wharf warehouse today after she was pronounced dead, following an elevator accident. Rescue party worked an hour to free the girl from tightly-wedged position between elevator and wall.

INP by Harry Simard

Clean Up

Incensed over the failure of street department workers to clean up the streets in the vicinity of Paris and Brooks sts., East Boston, war veterans of that district joined forces to perform the work themselves.
